MISSIONARIES BUTCHERED BY TURKS

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 16.—Information received here today from Adana, in Asiatic Turkey, declares that two American missionaries have been killed in the anti-Armenian outbreak at that place. The names of the two missionaries are not given in the dispatch, and the news of their killing is said to lack confirmation. The American missionaries at Adana, under the control of the American Board of Foreign Missions, are Rev. William Chambers and Mrs. Cornelia Chambers, his wife, and the Misses Elizabeth and Mary Webb, two sisters.

The Moslem fanaticism against the Christians of Adana appears to have broken out afresh. The Moslem attacks recommenced yesterday afternoon and continued throughout the night. Large numbers of Christians are said to have been killed. One report says that sixty Armenians have lost their lives and that many houses have been looted and burned. The British vice-consul at Mersina has proceeded to Adana.

The first news of this anti-Christian outbreak said the scene was Mersina, but this was erroneous. The trouble occurred at Adana, which is about thirty-six miles inland from Mersina. Mersina is on the Mediterran. The early reports were declared to have been exaggerated, and messages received here yesterday evening said that only ten Armenians had been killed, that martial law had been proclaimed at Adana and that reinforcements of troops were being sent in from Beirut. This latest intelligence refers to disorders that took place after the situation was supposed to have quieted down.

Ambassador Leishman has had no direct news of the reported killing of the American missionaries. He has instructed the American vice-consul at Mersina, John Debbas, to proceed immediately for Mersina and report on the situation. Railroad communication between Mersina and Adana appears to be interrupted.

Well, if You Can't Pay More, EAT LESS

PATTEN, IN PERIL, HAS A BODY-GUARD

CHICAGO, April 16.—James A. Patten, the "wheat king," whose corner in the May cereal has sent flour and bread prices soaring, went to the Board of Trade to-day closely guarded.

He was followed at every step by a burly negro bodyguard. Two detectives are his constant companions in his automobile.

Anonymous letters threatening and severely arraigning Patten for his negotiations in wheat have been received by him in the past few days. Some of them are of an anarchistic tone. One even went so far as to demand money that the writer might ride in an automobile like Mr. Patten does.

"I have received dozens of these letters," said Mr. Patten to-day as he jumped into his automobile in Evanston preparatory to going to work. "I would not exactly call them threatening or anarchistic, but they certainly do criticize me severely. I am not worried about that. These people believe I have a corner on wheat and it makes them sore and they write the letters."

To-day it developed that the State of Illinois is to make an effort to put an end forever to corners in wheat, and dealings in futures which, it has been so widely charged, caused the present high prices of wheat. The matter has been placed before officials of the Attorney-General's office in this State. It may go before the same officials in other States.

Following yesterday's exciting market, wheat on the Board of Trade was nervous at the opening to-day. Patten was said to be a buyer. July opened a quarter to half cent lower at $1.16 to $1.16½; May was unchanged to ⅛ lower at $1.27⅞, to $1.28⅜ and September 1 to ⅛ cent higher at $1.06½ to $1.06⅝.

Flour, which is now quoted at $7 a barrel, will go still higher, possibly to $8 or $10 a barrel, according to Chicago milling men, as a result of the wheat shortage. They declare that the shortage is a result of the corner in wheat.

Flour is now at $7 a barrel, which is about 75 cents below cost. Flour must rise five cents for every cent the grain climbs. This is because there are five bushels to a barrel of flour.

Patten to-day replied to Secretary Wilson's statement in which he declared the governmental reports show no shortage of wheat, and that the report of March 1 showed more reported than 1908. The honest men who have no self-interest in the matter, Mr. Patten said that his interest in the supply of wheat is better than the government's; that Mr. Wilson's report of March 1 was a farce—the biggest joke of the century.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 16.—President Taylor, Manager Lake and their troop of Red Sox reached Washington last night about 5:30 p. m. and were on hand to congratulate the Highlanders when they came back to the Arlington from the park after trimming the Washington team.

"We shall give them the same dose," said Manager Lake, "and we would have got to the Athletics but for the weather." All the Bostons were up early this morning and everybody felt anxious and eager for the fray this afternoon.

Manager Lake said at noon that he would work Burchell, so that it will be a battle of the B's—Burns and Burchell. Both managers are figuring on the southpaw loading the left-handed batters, and as a result a battle royal should result.

Cantillon has practically given the New Yorks a game by holding up Hill Burns as he is the best Washington has at present, while Walter Johnson having but recently left a sick bed.

Scout Pat Donovan is with the Boston, and as he managed the Washingtons several years ago, has friends in this city. This morning Pat had a big bunch of friends around him at the Arlington to the wonderment of the young men of the Red Sox.

The pending series with the Red Sox has been worked up nicely by the local papers, and big crowds will witness each struggle.

The clever victory of the Boston over the Athletics Tuesday satisfied Manager Lake with his line up, and he will send the same back to-day. It is as follows:

SOUTH END GROUNDS, April 15.—Expecting to see the Doves dump the Phillies again the fans thronged the scene of the conflict in the final game of the series with the Quakers.

The lay off of yesterday only whetted the appetites of the diamond lovers and they were hungry to see another batting bout such as the Doves displayed in the opening contest of the season.

The Quakers were determined to do that. They had no intention of leaving town with two defeats registered against them, and got busy at the outset to humble the Doves. It was on the job for them from the first ball, determined to carve the harpoon into Bowerman's henchmen right off the reel.

As Big Chief Bowerman announced that he would wear the wind pad and mask, the call took apperture very many for the home crowd, and the strong-arm boatmen, all in the best of shape for a hard battle, made in an even break so far as the strength of the two clubs was concerned.

The visitors were handicapped by having their best pitcher, Moxlen, laid up. He was slated to face the Doves and cut them off from victory, and the two deserves, Foxen and Moore were called out to save the day.

The choice that Bowerman had up his sleeve consisted of little Tom McCarthy or Lindaman with his split puzzler.

Bowerman in the second, and the certain watched them carefully in their warming up practice before coming to a decision.

BIG FIRE AT CINCINNATI

CINCINNATI, O., April 16.—The entire Cincinnati fire department fought to-day to save the powerhouse of the Cincinnati Traction Company and adjoining buildings on Eastern avenue. The flames spread and the plant, valued at $500,000, was expected to be a total loss.

The blaze was discovered shortly after 5 o'clock in the oilhouse. After several hours' work it was believed to be under control, but this forenoon the fire broke out afresh and spread with such rapidity that Fire Chief Archbold turned in a general alarm calling all the city's apparatus to the scene. The eastern section of the city is without street car service.

SCHOOL GIRL KILLED BY VAN

Gertrude Hannaford, the twelve-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George N. Hannaford of Pearl street, Salem, was killed at noon to-day while stealing a ride coming home from school.

In company with some companions, the child, on her way home from the Bentley school, tried to "steal a ride" underneath a big furniture moving van. She was sitting on a strap, which suddenly broke, and she fell under the rear wheel, crushing her head.

ARMY TO OPEN FIRE ON PORTE

SALONICA, Turkey, April 16.—After a frenzied meeting here to denounce the new Turkish cabinet, the Young Turks Committee has determined to attack Constantinople with the Third Army Corps, of which twenty battalions have been mobilized.

The railroad company has been ordered to prepare every available car to transport the troops to the capital.

Janie Bey is expected here with 10,000 volunteers.

All business is at a standstill throughout the city.

When news of the approach of the battalions was received in Constantinople the Ulema ordered the Anatolian guard, the most loyal troops in Turkey, to surround the palace. Messages are passing between Constantinople and Salonica in desperate effort to prevent the using of the soldiers now quartered here.

BEEF TRUST IS INDICTED

TOPEKA, Kan., April 16.—The Federal Grand Jury to-day indicted the Cudahy Packing Company of Kansas City, Kan., on 737 counts. The company, which is a leading member of the Beef Trust, is charged with defrauding the government of $80,000 by violations of the internal revenue laws.

NOTABLE SPEAKERS FOR "1915" MEETING

Plans are being made for the Boston 1915 meeting at the Boston City Club to be held next Thursday evening, April 22, at 8 o'clock. The club has secured a notable array of speakers for that occasion. Music will be furnished by two orchestras and a glee club. The speakers are to be Rev. Dr. Samuel M. Crothers, J. J. Sullivan, Louis D. Brandeis, George S. Smith, Bernard J. Rothwell and James J. Storrow. The feature of this meeting will be the explanation of the practical application of the "Boston 1915" plan. While the general "plan for a plan" for Boston's development between now and 1915 will form the basis of the addresses, the speakers will dwell more especially on the immediate needs and immediate application of the whole "Boston 1915" movement.

COURT GIVES OUT AUTO SPEED FINES

Charged with violating the auto speed laws, several men were up before Judge Joseph P. Churchill in the Dorchester Municipal Court to-day. Horace M. Rickford, seventeen years old, of No. 435 Columbia road, Dorchester, paid $10; James P. Houghton of Alexander street, Dorchester, $15; William P. Child of No. 247 Beacon street, $5; Fred L. Morgan of No. 682 Blue Hill avenue, Dorchester, and Leroy Dowley of Hyde Park, a student in Dartmouth, whose sled William P. Richards of No. 30b Centre street, Brockton, $20; Frank W. Lacey of No. 873 Dorchester avenue, $10, and Phil J. Steele of Hall Park, Medford, case filed.

COLOR IS LIFE.

General advertisers are appreciating more and more the effectiveness of color display, particularly in this time of those manufacturers who have established for their products a wide distribution; but who still realize the necessity of keeping their name and trade-mark permanently before the public. A striking example of effective color advertising is the announcement of the National Cash Register Company, which occupies the back cover page of the Sunday Magazine, issue of April 18th. Every merchant who is interested in good advertising and all progressive merchants are advised to study carefully the splendid example of publicity. In addition to being attractive in illustration, the advertisement tells an exquisite story, which should be carefully considered by every retail merchant.

NEWS OF ARMY'S COMING ALARMS CONSTANTINOPLE

LONDON, April 16.—Dispatches from Constantinople bear the information that the city is in a tumult to-day over the expected arrival of the Third Army Corps. A proclamation was issued to-day by the 150 Deputies of Parliament exhorting the people to remain calm, and guaranteeing the constitution.

The new ministry will present its progress to Parliament on Monday, and the cabinet believes that if the people can be held in check until that time the danger will have been passed.

General Mouktar Pasha embarked on an English yacht, and is now safe. The assassination of Arif Bey, commander of the battleship Assar-i-Tewfik, who trained the guns of his ship upon the Yildiz Kiosk, has increased the excitement. Thousands of sailors took part in a demonstration before the parliament building and the Yildiz Kiosk, clamoring for the dismissal of the new Minister of Marine.

The new minister of marine, Vice-Admiral Avilemin Pasha, has resigned owing to the ability shown his ape-lationt by the army. The President of the United State also has surrendered his office, but on account of his health. The navy and police and other officers identified with the Young Turk revolution in Congress have either resigned or disappeared.

EDITOR FOR AMBASSADOR.

SPRINGFIELD IS FLOODED

SPRINGFIELD, April 16.—A rise of more than one foot in the Connecticut River since 6 o'clock last night aggravated the flood situation here. To-day the river gauge showed 18.7 feet about low water mark.

This is about 14 feet above the normal stage. The flood has caused the biggest problem recorded since the Spring of 1902, when the water rose to 19.4 feet.

The Armory is now about two feet from eight to ten feet under water. The park at the foot of Union street is covered with four feet of water. Houses on Porter avenue, in Mittineague, were surrounded by water and the cellars were filled.

In Springfield several factory cellars were flooded and the risk of powerful steam pumps was all that prevented considerable suffering in many homes. The ticket office and landing of the steamer Myrtle were washed away.

RESCUE SIX IN BREECHES BUOY

PROVIDENCE, April 16.—After they had been swept by heavy seas for nearly twelve hours, the crew of six men of the two-masted schooner, G. A. Hayden, of Edgartown, Mass., which went ashore on Point Judith last night, were rescued early to-day by the men of the Point Judith Life Saving Station.

It was necessary to bring them all ashore by means of the breeches buoy, for the surf was too high to permit the launching of a boat, backed as it was by half a gale. There is little hope that the fifty-one-year-old schooner will be saved, for she was light, and every sea that broke over her before the crew was taken off was doing to the destruction.

The schooner came down the coast and was soon lost in the fog. Still she crept on until Captain Wheden succeeded in getting his bearings and found that he was on the 200 yards off Point Judith. Both anchors were dropped, but one of the cables parted and Captain Wheden endeavored in vain to work his vessel off to the eastward.

SPURNED, SAYS CROSSMAN; 'NO HARVARD MAN'

By agreement of counsel and court the suit of Mrs. Fred A. Crossman for separate support, which is being tried at East Cambridge, was postponed to-day until May 10.

Bitter charges have been made against her husband by Mrs. Crossman, a daughter of Ex-Mayor James M. W. Hall of Cambridge. Mr. Crossman on the stand emphatically denied all of her assertions and broke down and wept.

The husband says he left Hall family broke up his home, and says that the ex-Mayor blocked his eye.

Because he was not a Harvard graduate he testified that his wife's family openly declared that this fact had cost her nearly half her Cambridge friends. Also because of the fact that he had spent three years at Yale and only a year at Harvard.

He further asserted that one day when her mother called to see her boy Cross- man left him with a cool shrug and refused to bring to mother the children. She repeatedly declared, he swears, that she would get a separation because of his "low" ality.

On one occasion, he stated, because his mother-in-law cut the children's hair short and put in the cold in her nightdress, declaring she was going to kill herself.

FITZGERALD CHALLENGES MATTHEWS TO DEBATE ON BOSTON'S "CORRUPTION"

Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald to-day came out with an open challenge to Finance Commissioner Nathan Matthews, Jr., to a public debate on the latter's charge that Boston is the "worst governed and the most corrupt" city in America.

He issued his challenge while speaking in reply to Mr. Matthews' much published criticisms of local political conditions. He said:

"If the AMERICAN can arrange a joint debate between Mr. Matthews and myself, I'll meet him with pleasure, and you can fill Mechanics Building when the event comes off. I guess you would, too. I think it's a very attractive challenge.

"But I don't think he will come. The last time I challenged him to come back to the argument in favor of the charter proposed by the Finance Commission and he knew it, I've got the goods on him.

"In an address to the Bunker Hill Club of Charlestown last night the former Mayor again advocated a Finance Commission which would look after the metropolitan district, or the whole State, as well as the affairs of Boston.

Enormous Boston Tax.

"It is absurd," he remarked to-day, "to try to safeguard the Boston treasury without instituting a reform in the method of taxing Boston for metropolitan public works. As I said last night Boston's share in this debt is greater than the total tax levy of half a dozen of our big Massachusetts cities.

"And when we're chasing graft, we've got to watch out for extravagant and unnecessary expenditures by the whole commonwealth. Higher salaries for work, and leaks will be found everywhere. The land purchase recently advocated in the Legislature shows conclusively that State officials as well as those in municipalities are open to graft schemes. And we must put a check on the enormous waste in the expenditure of the people's moneys."

In his speech in Charlestown last night, he said:

"Mayor Matthews does Boston a great injury when he says that we are the worst governed city in the country.

Cities Sale of Bonds.

"The best barometer of civic conditions is the money market, and Boston sells its bonds at a larger rate than any city in the country. When I was in the Mayor's office we were the only city in the country that floated a 3 per cent. loan. New York went on a 4½ per cent. basis and some cities 5 per cent.

"Boston is now getting most in the matter of municipal expenditures, yet Mr. Matthews on the Finance Commission has seen nothing along this line. Boston's share of the metropolitan debt is about $10,000,000, while Boston's debt contracted by Boston's City Council amounts to less than $20,000,000. Not one word about a Finance Commission for these expenditures, though they amount to more than the tax levy in Lowell, Somerville, Lawrence, Springfield and New Bedford.

"I favor a Finance Commission consisting of a man appointed by the Governor of the State, the Mayor of Boston, one selected by the Mayors of the cities and the chairman of the Boards of Selectmen of the metropolitan district, one by the mechanics association and one by the labor unions of the metropolitan district. This commission to guard the metropolitan as well as the Boston treasury."

Mr. Fitzgerald was asked if he regarded the harmonious meeting of the Democratic ward chairmen yesterday as being favorable to his candidacy for the nomination for Mayor. "Well, it looks good," he replied. "In any event, it is pleasing to note that the leaders of the party are working together. That is very commendable."

ULTIMATUM TO COAL MINERS

WILKESBARRE, Pa., April 16.—No meeting of the anthracite mine workers officials and the special committee of coal company managers who are to formulate the policy of the mine operators in dealing with the mine workers will be held.

This was announced to-day by members of the operators' committee, and it was also said that the committee will hold its first meeting in a few days to hear reports of its members from all sections of the coal fields.

The coal companies, say the operators, will positively not recognize the union, and as this is the only thing the mine workers now want, it would be useless to hold any meeting unless the mine workers signify their intention of renewing the agreement offered them in the open letter.

FIRE PANIC IN GREAT HOTELS

NEW YORK, April 16.—Fire in the Union Square Hotel, Fifteenth street and Union square, caused so much fright among the 120 guests that most of them spent the night in the corridors in varied assortment of night dress.

The scare also extended to the Hotel America, directly in the rear of the Union Square, and many of the guests there fled to the street without taking time to dress.

The guests in both hotels were told there was no danger, and many of them went back to their rooms only to be aroused a second time by the firemen. Firemen were then stationed in the halls of the hotel, and there they remained until long after daylight. The damage was trifling.

Nearly everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

BARK ASHORE IN HEAVY FOG

VINEYARD HAVEN, April 16.—The Gay Head life-saving crew has gone to the wreck of a four-masted barque ashore on No Man's Land, six miles south of Martha's Vineyard. There was a heavy fog to-day, the water last night and early to-day. This fog obscured No Man's Land and was dangerous to shipping.

When the fog partly lifted to-day the lookout at Gay Head Life Station could barely make out the barque. The lookout could not possibly discern whether the barque was cast away on a reef or caught in the sands. Nor could the present condition of the vessel be ascertained.

The life-crew put out immediately. It is supposed that the vessel passed her bearings in the night fog and struck on the island.

The steamer North Star, bound from New York to Portland, reported to the United Wireless Company, Grand street, Boston, that a four-masted bark was apparently ashore on No Man's Land.

"WOOF" AND DOGGIE PROTESTS THE FINE

"Bobby" Cunningham says to-day that he never ran on the flower beds in the Public Garden, all he did was to scamper on the grass a bit. "Bobby" is young, only about three years old. He thinks it is tough to have a fine of one dollar assessed in court just because he went on the grass.

Miss Ethel Cunningham of No. 11 St. James street, who was in the Public Garden that day with "Bobby," is a mother of expression, with pupils in the Back Bay and Brookline. She expresses herself emphatically in support of "Bobby's" denial that he ran on the flower beds.

"Bobby and I were coming down from the Public Library," she said to-day, "and we took a short cut through the garden and across the little bridge. I had one hand on 'Bobby' and the other got to the bridge. I thought he would go across that all right and I let go. But the end of the bridge he dodged me and ran on to the grass a bit, just as the Doggie got there. A policeman told us we must come into court, and I just supposed a fine of one dollar, didn't he, 'Bobby'?

"Woof!" said "Bobby."

"Bobby" is a dog, an English shepherd and a handsome fellow. He is the first dog in twenty-five years in Boston in the case of this kind in the Public Gardens.

FIND DOCTOR WHO ESCAPED

PROVIDENCE, April 16.—After two days of wandering about in two States since his sensational escape from the State Hospital for the Insane, Dr. L. P. Chandler was returned to the asylum today. He was captured in Williamatic, Ct., by the police. How he got there, or where he had been since his break to liberty, is not known.

Though he was clad only in his underclothing, without shoes or hat, the physician did not seem to have suffered.

He made his escape on Tuesday night by prying off one of the bars of his room and leaping to the ground.

Dr. Chandler is a member of one of the oldest and most respected families of Providence until his health became wrecked by the use of drugs. He regained his faculties, and has been connected as one of the hospital surgeons. He obtained some of the drugs Thursday. When under its influence he is violent.

RAILROAD "GHOST" MYSTERY SOLVED

NEW HAVEN, Ct., April 16.—Railroad men on the New York, New Haven & Hartford road have been frightened by the appearance at night at Stony Creek of a tall figure clothed in flowing white robes just where Station Agent Way was murdered ten years ago. Engineers drove it away by tooting on the steam. It has become known that the Shore Line ghost is Augustus Anderson, who lives in a hut on Leete's Island. Each night he dons association robes and floats down the track to where Way was murdered.

RING FIGHTS AT SEA IS NEWEST DIVERSION

NEW YORK, April 16.—"Reddy" (Wilson) Allard, nineteen, lightweight, weighing 130 pounds, is champion of the high seas. He arrived on the Teutonic. On the voyage across he won sixteen out of thirty prize fights pulled off among the third-class passengers. One of his victims was a big coal passer. The prize fights, which were started the first night out from Queenstown, attracted the attention of the first-class passengers, and when the liner reached port there wasn't much silver on the ship that hadn't been given to the fighters as prizes.

AMERICAN DOLLARS RUSH TO CANADA

OTTAWA, April 16.—An old American farmer from Des Moines, Ia., walked into the immigration offices at Winnipeg, remarking that he wanted to buy a farm and would first look around. He said he knew nothing of banks, and had confidence in the Dominion Government. He therefore asked the officials to take care of his old wallet until he had picked his farm. On opening the wallet the officials found $25,000 in greenbacks. It was handed for the old man in the name of the government. This is a sample of the wave of immigrants now coming into Canada from the United States.

BOY HEIR TO VAST WEALTH IS KIDNAPPED

ST. LOUIS, April 16.—James Shepard Cabanne, Jr., seven years old, and the "Last of the Cabannes," youngest heir to the wealth of a famous old St. Louis family, has been kidnapped from the home of his grandmother, and is being searched for to-day by the police of St. Louis, Memphis and Louisville.

The boy's mother was formerly Miss Minnie Leonard, whose daughter, also "Sally" Leonard, was plaintiff in a $25,000 law suit five years ago against Alexander Hagenson of Boston.

The kidnapping case has aroused a profound sensation among the people of wealth and social position in this city, in its earlier developments it reveals a phase of the Willie Whitla case in that at least one of the Cabanne boy's abductors was a woman.

Behind the kidnapping is the question in the divorce story of one of St. Louis' oldest families.

The father is suing for divorce. The mother declares she obtained a divorce in British Honduras, and is now married to Broughton Brandenburg, a society writer, who became involved in the Cleveland letter scandal.

The boy's parents have been separated for several years. Two months ago the father fought for divorce and custody action, but the courts have not yet rendered a decision.

According to Mrs. James Shepard Cabanne, who is now in Louisville, she already had been divorced from Mr. Cabanne when she left St. Louis in company with Broughton Brandenburg. She took, styles herself Mrs. Brandenburg, and when her name that was in correspondence to St. Louis friends.

For a time she and Brandenburg are said to have lived at No. 62 West Ninth street, New York. There they made their home until the Brandenburg-Cleveland letter scandal, when Brandenburg disappeared.

Mrs. Brandenburg explained her husband's action by saying he disappeared because he had no money. This statement in the New York papers brought out a counter story between Mrs. Brandenburg and Mrs. Valtee Brandenburg, who was said in her claims as the only legitimate wife of Broughton Brandenburg. While this was being shouted back and forth James Shepard Cabanne quietly pursued his business to Memphis, Tenn., where he now lives. James Shepard Cabanne, Jr., is living with his grandmother at the Cabanne avenue address.

There are several mysterious circumstances with the abduction of the child. He was playing in front of the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Maria C. Cabanne, No. 6,365 Cabanne avenue, a thoroughfare named after the family, and in the most fashionable section of the city. It was there that the woman who has been the leading figure in the kidnapping first approached the child. The woman had the help of a man, but it is believed that this man was some one who lived in St. Louis and had no hand in planning the kidnapping.

About two hours after the boy was known to be missing from home the grandmother was called to the telephone and a much voice said:

"I was given $4 by a woman to help her place a boy on an Illinois Central train bound for Louisville. He will be taken care of."

The man hung up the receiver without giving time to be questioned.

COURT REINSTATES 3 LAWRENCE MEN

The three License Commissioners of Lawrence who were removed by Mayor Whitney of that city were reinstated to-day by Judge Walt of the Superior Criminal Court. The men are Daniel F. McCarthy, Benjamin F. Clifford and James Clifford. Judge Walt said in his decision:

"I am compelled to find that there was not a fair hearing; that the substantial rights of the petitioners were not observed in the admission of evidence and the conduct of the hearing, and that the findings are not justified by the evidence actually submitted."

ARBOR DAY IS APRIL 24

Governor Draper today issued this proclamation designating Saturday, April 24, as Arbor Day:

In accordance with law, I designate Saturday, the 24th day of April as Arbor Day.

At no time in the history of our country has the great value of trees been appreciated as it is now.

In the days of the pioneer, when the land was heavily wooded, trees were considered the enemies of the settler, because they interfered with his tilling the ground to obtain food.

In these later days, when trees are planted for purely ornamental purposes, the situation has changed, and it is necessary not only to save them, but for many reasons which were not so important in earlier times, to increase their number.

Throughout the State, in every way and I urge all the people of the Commonwealth, who are situated that they can do so, either to plant a new tree, or properly care for some existing one, on Arbor Day.

Given at the Executive Chamber in Boston, this thirteenth day of April, in the year of our Lord, one Thousand Nine Hundred and Nine, and of the independence of the United States of America, the one hundred and thirty-third. EBEN S. DRAPER.

FAVORS INVENTORY OF 'PHONE PROPERTY

The Ways and Means Committee reported to the State Senate today a resolve appropriating $25,000 for the State Highway Commission to expend in making an inventory of the property in this State of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company, now operated under a franchise, and to proceed at once. The State is to get the money back from the concern. The inventory may have a bearing on rate cases.

ROOSEVELT AIDES CATCH RARE BIRDS

By A. J. LAMBERT.

(Special Correspondent of the Boston American with Roosevelt on Board the Steamship Admiral.

Special Cable to Boston American.)

ADEN, Arabia, April 16.—Theodore Roosevelt entered Arabia and sailed out of it for Mombasa at 10 o'clock last night.

The Hour Admiral, with himself and his hunting party aboard, put into the Aden docks early in the afternoon and took on some supplies. Mr. Roosevelt sent out several of the scientists of his party to log the first specimens of his tour for the Smithsonian Institute.

The scientists proved excellent hunters, and came in with fifteen rare birds which will be shipped to America at once.

As the only possible game was these birds Mr. Roosevelt did not join the hunters, but put himself in charge of the Norwegian Consul to Aden, the acting American representative, who showed him the sights of the modern town until it was time to return to the Admiral.

Mr. Roosevelt stood the best of this trying portion of his voyage very well and continues in the best of health, but his spirits have not been so blythesome since he was shown extracts from a three column interview printed in a Paris newspaper.

Undoubtedly the French reporter published some of the casual remarks made by the former President while he talked informally, not knowing the practice of American reporters who never have to send anything coming from Roosevelt until he says it for publication.

The former President has denounced these Paris paper interviews as all "fake and falsehood," but at the same time he apparently has taken a lesson from them, for during the past few days he has been much more discreet than hitherto in his talks to fellow passengers. He confines his conversation chiefly to hunting, art and literature.

Mr. Roosevelt has agreed to step off at Mombasa long enough to lunch at a club and to traverse the town as the Mayor's guest.

ABSOLUTE CURE OF SKIN ERUPTION

Broke Out on Hips and Legs—Was So Sore, Irritating and Painful that Little Sufferer Could Not Sleep—Scratched Constantly and Kept Growing Worse.

CUTICURA'S EFFECT QUICK AND PERMANENT

"When about two and a half years old my daughter broke out on her hips and the upper parts of her legs with a very irritating and painful eruption. It began in October; the first I noticed was a little red surface and a constant desire on her part to scratch her limbs. She could get sleep and the eruptions got sore, and yellow water came out of them. I had two doctors treat her, but she grew worse under their treatment. Then I bought the Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Resolvent, and only used them two weeks when she was entirely well. This was in February. She has never had another rough place on her skin, and she is now fourteen years old. I used only half the bottle of Cuticura Resolvent and less than a box of Cuticura Ointment. Mrs. R. R. Whitaker, Winchester, Tenn., Sept. 22, 1908."

ASKS FACTS IN LOWELL CASH QUERY

LOWELL, April 16.—A resolution, which is really a sensational attack on Mayor George H. Brown, was filed to-day in the office of the city clerk by Aldermen John D. Turner. It will come before the Aldermen Tuesday night. The resolution follows:

Resolved, that the opinion of the city solicitor be requested on the following questions:

Has the Mayor the right to require the payment of any sum of money to himself as Mayor or otherwise as a condition of granting permits for licenses for Sunday entertainments?

If he has received any such sums in his capacity as Mayor, is it his duty to turn over the same to the city treasury?

If any such sums are not turned over to the city treasurer but are disposed of by him or his order, has the crime of larceny been committed?

If such sums are so received by him personally and not in his capacity as Mayor, but as a condition of the granting by him as Mayor of such license or permit, has the crime of extortion been committed?

It is alleged that Mayor Brown collected $837 for licenses for the privilege of holding Sunday shows in this city. He created the position of treasurer of the Municipal Register Fund and appointed David Dixon to the place.

'I LOVED HIM,' SAYS BRIDE IN PISTOL WOOING

PROVIDENCE, April 16.—Mrs. Christina Destino, bride of Camille Destino, told to-day how she loved her husband and why she married him, even though he had tried to kill him.

The bride was formerly Miss Christina Palmieri, an eighteen-year-old Italian belle, in a jealous frenzy Destino shot her twice and tried to kill himself. Both recovered. The girl secured a reduction of Destino's bail to $1,500 so he could secure his freedom, pending his trial for assault with dangerous weapon. They were married yesterday at the home where the shooting occurred, No. 101 Arthur avenue. Today the happy bride said:

"I have Camille with all my heart. It and I had been keeping company for some time. We were the best of friends till he began to pay too much attention to other girls. Our love was broken for a time. One day he came to the house and shot me. I jumped through a window to escape him. I think he was excited and did not know what he was doing.

"After he went to jail I was sorry for him and wanted him back. I was willing to forgive him for what he had done.

"I wrote to him at the jail and later went to see him and we made plans to get married if I could get him out of jail. A friend of ours, Angelo Pettine, helped me and the Judge married us. We are very happy once more and I hope that the old affair will be forgotten.

Destino gives his bride all credit for the happy outcome of their trouble: "She arranged it all," he said. "I love her and wish to forget the past. I shall make it so for her."

It is said the case against Destino may not come to trial as the defendant's wife is the chief witness depended on by the State.

VINCENT GIRLS WORK HARD FOR ANNUAL SHOW

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

Vincent Club girls are working overtime rehearsing for their annual spring show, which takes place the last of the month in Jordan Hall, and which, as them themselves predict, is to be the "best ever." Though there is hard work there is also lots of fun at the rehearsals and things are moving along right merrily.

Miss Elisabeth Porter is drilling the choruses, which are larger than ever and which represent street people in Constantinople where the scene of the play is laid. Some of the girls to be in the choruses are the Misses Leslie Bradley, Ella Lyman, Ruth Flint, Delia Dana, Mary Pierce, Helen Read, May Loring, Rosamond Bowditch and Josephine Dorr, debutantes of the winter, who consequently will make their first appearance as members of the Vincent Club, and the Misses Rosamond Bradley, Charlotte Harding, Pauline and Suzette Davis, Margery Phelps, Elizabeth Nash, Mildred and Marjorie Thayer, Ruth Nickerson, Ellen Farnsworth, Mildred Cox, Louise Brooks, Isabella Clark, Marian Gay, Vrylena Gill, Anita Clark, Marion and Dorothy Lawson, Elizabeth Jackson and Frances Porter, who wrote the lyrics. One of the most attractive dances will be the Persian one in which one of the quartet will be Mrs. Richard King Thorndike, who was formerly Miss Florence Macy of New York. The others will be Miss Vrylena Gill and Miss Marion and Miss Dorothy Lawson. This will be Mrs. Thorndike's first appearance with the Vincent Club. The Irish break-down, which is sure to make a hit, will be done by the Misses Ruth Flint, Dorothy Coburn, Pauline and Suzette Davis, Molly Hall and Dorothy Bolles.

The ushers, under Miss Dorothy Forbes' direction, will be the Misses Elizabeth and Katherine Parker, Gertrude Sturgis, Rosemond Fay, Mary Williams, Ellen Dalton, Christine Baxter, Evelyn Garrett, Dorothy Pierce, Julia and Violet Sheppard, Marian Shaw, Helen Emery, Mary Perkins, Margaret Codman, Christine Hunnewell, Molly Eliot, Susan Dabney, Colette Dunarese, Juliet Higginson, Josephine Griffith, Elizabeth Freeman, Anna Cutler, Nathalie Matthews, Minna Jones, Marion Fay, Cordelia Jackson, Margaret and Mildred Stearns, Miriam Nash, Priscilla Reynolds, Elizabeth Brooks, Dorothy Dwight, Gladys and Madeline French and Adeline Hooper, Mrs. Richard Robins, Jr., and Mrs. C. S. Waldo, Jr.

Society flocks to Huntington Chambers Hall to-night for the entertainment given there by Vincent Club girls and other young society amateurs for the benefit of the Emmanuel Social Service. A few of the patronesses for the affair are: Mrs. Ward Worcester, Mrs. Samuel Mercuan, Mrs. William Lawrence, Mrs. S. V. R. Cruger, Mrs. William Lindsey, Mrs. S. Reed Anthony, Mrs. Henry H. Fay, Mrs. H. Bemis, Mrs. E. J. Holmes, Mrs. Charles H. Taylor, Mrs. P. M. Stanwood, Mrs. C. P. Searle and Mrs. Whitney.

Two plays are given; the first, "The New Crusade", a modern farce by Mrs. Rachel Baker Gale, and the second, "The Golden Key," which is given in mediaeval costumes.

Between the plays the pretty and talented Cotton twins, Elinor and Lillian —buds of last winter—play the violin and cello and Miss Ernestine Schumann sings.

In the interlude of "The Golden Key" Miss Leslie Lindsey and Miss Edith Rotch, two of the finest dancers of the Vincent Club, and Miss Chamberlain and Mrs. S. Parker Brewer do some interesting terpsichorean stunts.

Those in the cast of "The New Crusade" are the Misses Edith Rotch, Dorothy Clapp, Mary Wetherbee, Mabel Welch, Anna Pollard, Elizabeth Wales, Alice and L. B. Stanwood, Leslie Lindsey, Eleanora Curtis, Margaret Esterbrook and Mrs. C. H. Rich.

In the cast of the other play are Mrs. Edwin S. Green, Miss L. B. Stanwood, Miss Ruth Coons, Mrs. Ethel S. Bassett, Miss Dorothy Wetherald, Miss Phyllis Croll, Miss Margaret Burnham, Miss Katherine French, Mrs. Ernest Jacoby, Mr. Paul Stanwood, Mr. Fletcher Steele and Mr. Harry de Traytor. The ushers will be the Misses Dorothy Fay, Nora Ladd, Ruth Lowrence, Elinor Quincy, Ruth Anthony and Susan Appleton, all members of the Vincent Club.

Dr. and Mrs. Reginald H. Fitz of Arlington street, and their daughter, Miss Edith Fitz, will sail for Europe next Wednesday to remain until October.

* * *

Mrs. John L. Bremer (Mary Bigelow) is leaving town to-morrow for Philadelphia where she is to christen the new torpedo boat destroyer, Joseph L. Smith, when it is launched from Cramp's shipyard on Tuesday. Mrs. Bremer was invited by Secretary of the Navy Meyer to christen the boat which is one of the fifteen new destroyers now in process of building for the navy.

Mrs. Bremer who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Smith Bigelow, is one of the nearest living relations of the officer for whom the vessel is to be named.

MISS BARRYMORE'S UNDERSTUDY HURT

WATERBURY, April 16.—Miss Galyer, understudy to Ethel Barrymore in "Lady Frederick," is suffering from bruises from a fall over fifteen marble steps at the Kingsbury Hotel. She was cared for by the company until Dr. Grady declared to-day that no bones were broken. Miss Galyer has been hysterical, but was helped to the train and went to Meriden with the company. She entered the hotel in the dark and got on the wrong landing.

MISS ELSA PUTNAM BRIDE OF RICH HARVARD GRADUATE

Elsa Putnam, bride of Samuel Powel, and her grandmother, Mrs. Whitney, on their way into the Arlington Street Church.

Vincent Club girls and society folks of this city, New York and Newport were present at the wedding of Miss Elsa Putnam, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Pickering Putnam of the Charlesgate, and Samuel Powel of Newport, a Harvard man of the class of '08.

The ceremony was performed at the Arlington Street Church by the pastor, the Rev. Paul Revere Frothingham.

The bride, who is one of the most prominent members of the famous Vincent Club, was given away by her father. She was handsomely gowned in white satin over which fell a long veil which had been worn by the bridegroom's mother. Orange blossoms fastened the veil and a large bouquet of sweet peas was carried.

Miss Putnam had three attendants. The maid of honor, Miss Janet House of New York, wore a gown of white chiffon trimmed with bands of pompadour silk. She carried a bouquet of pink sweet peas. The two bridesmaids were Miss Elizabeth Hare Powel of Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., and Miss Hope Hemenway of the Back Bay. Their gowns were of pink chiffon and their flowers were pink roses tied with pink ribbons.

The groom was attended by his brother, Thomas Ives Hare Powel of Newport, a Harvard man, class of '10. The chancel of the church was decorated with a profusion of Easter lilies against a background of palms, which had been arranged by Miss Helen F. Pettis, a friend of the bride.

CIGARETTES MUST GO.

ST. PAUL, April 16.—Governor Johnson has signed the anti-cigarette bill, which makes it a misdemeanor to manufacture, sell or give away cigarettes or cigarette papers. The bill exempts jobbers who do an interstate business. The bill will become effective on August 1.

Best Spring Tonic

Doctors of All Schools Agree That the Best Tonic-Stimulant to Build Up the System, Run Down and Weakened by the Long Strain of Winter, and to Drive Out Spring Fever and Malaria is Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.

As a tonic and stimulant it is the greatest strength-giver known to science. It destroys disease germs and by its building and healing properties restores tissues in a gradual healthy natural manner. It is a wonderful specific in the treatment and cure of consumption, pneumonia, grippe, bronchitis, coughs, colds, malaria, low fevers, stomach troubles and all wasting, weakened diseased conditions, if taken in time.

We take the liberty of publishing a few of the thousands of letters received from leading doctors extolling the merits of this great Spring tonic and invigorator.

Effective Stimulant

In a recent letter A. J. Park, A. M., M. D., of 520 E. 60th st., Chicago, Ill., wrote: "I am too busy to write my opinion, experience and results of the ministration of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey to weak, feeble and debilitated patients, but will I will repeat emphatically and pointedly my confidence in the purity and remedial excellence of your Malt Whiskey. It is a first-class and most effective stimulant, and meets every indication where a stimulant is needed."

Prescribes It

K. M. Teigan, Ph. D., M. D., of 1120 20th Ave. N., Minneapolis, Minn., wrote in a recent letter: "During the last nineteen years I have frequently, when alcoholic stimulants have been indicated, prescribed Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for my patients, because it agrees with them better than any other. Without solicitation from you, or any of your representatives, permit me to say that I consider Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey the purest and very best synthetic product on the market."

Only Pure Whiskey

"I have received the sample of Malt Whiskey and believe it to be the only pure whiskey I have sampled for many years. I have been a victim of indigestion for 20 years, and find that I have received more benefit from Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey than all the other medicine I have ever taken. I have taken a teaspoonful after each meal for eighteen days, and I can scarcely find language to express the relief I have found while I have been taking it." D. Bodfield, M. D., 297 Archwood Ave., Cleveland, O.

If you wish to keep young, strong and vigorous, and have on your cheeks the glow of perfect health, take Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey regularly, according to directions. It tones and strengthens the heart action and purifies the entire system. It is recognized as the world's leading medicine everywhere.

CAUTION—When you ask your druggist, grocer or dealer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey be sure you get the genuine. It's the only absolutely pure medicinal malt whiskey and is sold in sealed bottles only—never in bulk. Look for the trade-mark, the "Old Chemist," on the label and make sure the seal over the cork is unbroken. Price $1.00. Write Consulting Physician, Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y., for a free illustrated medical booklet and free advice.

Has No Equal

Recently O. L. Woomsey, M. D., of 29 Austin St., Worcester, Mass., wrote: "A stimulant is frequently required in the practice of every physician, in the treatment of patients with weakened constitutions, nervous troubles, during convalescence, etc.

"In Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey I am of the opinion that you have an absolutely pure article that, for uniformity and effectiveness, has no equal. I believe it is used more generally by physicians than any other similar preparation."

Find It Absolutely Pure

"It is only when I consider it necessary that I prescribe stimulants for my patients. I then order Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, which from experience I think is absolutely pure." J. Priestman, M. D., 3401 Vernon Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Prescribed It For Years

"I have used Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey in my practice for years, in cases requiring a gentle and effective tonic-stimulant, and the results in every instance have been so gratifying and uniform that I have no hesitation in stating that as a medicinal whiskey I consider Duffy's in a class by itself and worthy of all the claims made for it by thousands of brother physicians, who, like myself, feel that no harm is done the profession to commend where commendation is due. You assuredly deserve great credit for having maintained such a high standard for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, for so many years, and for making it possible to obtain an absolutely pure medicinal whiskey at such a comparatively small expense." L. O. Monnse, M. D., Woonsocket, R. I.

GIRLS FORGE AHEAD OF BOYS IN GREAT WORLD RACE TOURS

Father Gasson Endorses Tour

Around-the-World Editor:

May I be permitted to state that the college authorities are delighted to know that Bernard Sheridan O'Kane will be a candidate for the "Round-the-World" trip from Boston College. He is a young man of superior ability and of sterling character.

Sincerely yours,
THOMAS I. GASSON, S. J.

HOUSANDS of votes were cast today in candidates in the Around the World and Tours to Europe Coupon. Some of you have forgotten the contest. Around the World tickets to send your votes promptly. It is evident you are all going to be absolutely correct that your own name appears on the voting coupon in the spaces provided for them. Already recipients are reporting without the names of the candidates. Fair warning has been given that no blanks will be counted, unless the candidate's name appears thereon.

In sending in voting coupons, do not roll them. Send them in flat packages. Bind them if possible and on the outside have a slip of paper giving your account and your name and address.

lowing instructions to the letter and as a result are making better results as to the vote than you boys. Now, boys and girls, some of you have not sent in one vote—think of it! GET BUSY. Let no person can tell us the votes like a big snowball.

An extra force of clerks have been put to work in the Around the World Department to handle the incoming rush of votes, but with all these precautions it will be impossible to count the votes daily unless you do your part. This is your contest, school boys and school girls of New England, and the AMERICAN is anxious to afford every facility for the handling of the vote returns, but if you hold back the votes and use subscriptions deliberately, you will seriously inconvenience the Around-the-World editor and the entire department.

"Dark Horses" Enter.

The nominations have not closed and some "dark horses" have just entered the race. These new boys and girls are going to be rewarded and they have set to work in a terrible pace. This will continue to the most exciting contest until the end. It will be greatly enlivened if you keep changing the positions of the contestants during the race.

The boys and girls are just realizing the good results of the popular subscription vote plan in discouraging vote speculators. There is very little cause to worry from the speculation of the voting coupon. The pupils appreciate this and many letters have been received from boys and girls who say they would not have entered the contest at all if the AMERICAN had not discouraged wholesale buying and selling of vote coupons.

Write Names on Coupons.

Where it is possible to do so, contestants are urged to secure the signature of the voter upon the voting coupon. By this method you are all sure to be absolutely correct that your own name appears on the voting coupon in the spaces provided for them. Already recipients are reporting without the names of the candidates. Fair warning has been given that no blanks will be counted, unless the candidate's name appears thereon.

In sending in voting coupons, do not roll them. Send them in flat packages. Bind them if possible and on the outside have a slip of paper giving your account and your name and address.

Boston College Candidate.

Boston College entered the list today when a letter was received from Rev. Father Thomas Gasson, S. J., endorsing Bernard Sheridan O'Kane for the Around-the-World race. All of the students of Boston College have pledged their support to O'Kane, who is captain of the Boston College base ball team and an all-around athlete. The faculty endorse him.

Another prominent candidate to secure a formal endorsement was Miss Cecelia Donkersloman, of No. 36 Village street, Boston, who will represent the Lincoln Settlement House in the Tour to Europe Contest for girls. In addition to support from the settlement members, she will have the support of the pupils of the Franklin School, which she attends.

Ellsworth F. Simpson, fifteen years old, who attends the high school at West Somerville, has the support of the Knights of King Arthur. His father is a prominent club and lodge man and has been promised assistance by brother members in the various organizations. Simpson was very modest in discussing his plans, but declares he will be heard from in the finish.

Will Offer Prizes.

An interesting letter received yesterday and which will be of a good deal of interest to the candidates is one from George L. Callahan, No. 28 Poplar street, Somerville. The letter is very readable:

"I am going to give a prize to the boy or girl who collects the largest number of subscriptions in my behalf, and shall also give two prizes for the boy or girl who collects the greatest number of voting coupons.

"Edgar Creighton, No. 84 Oxford street, Somerville, who attends the Martin W. Carr School, has interested a large number of friends in his behalf, and as result subscription parties, prize offers and other plans are under way, as a means of helping Creighton raise his total."

Not Too Late.

Letters are received from different parts of the New England States inquiring if it is too late to enter in the contest. It is positively not too late. Under the subscription plan of piling up votes, school boys or school girls, with the proper amount of energy and determination, can jump into the head of the vote column by making this or her entry. Industry and popularity is all that it takes.

For the benefit of those who wrestle in doubt, remember that any school boy or school girl, fourteen years old or over is eligible. The magnificent offer of the BOSTON AMERICAN is open to pupils anywhere within the States of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and that part of Connecticut which is east of the Connecticut River. The BOSTON AMERICAN will pay all expenses of winners and escorts.

KNOCKED HER DOWN ON HER BRIDAL TOUR

June Vassar, the actress, who appeared in a big Boston production last season, came into the Middlesex Superior Court at East Cambridge today to testify for herself in the divorce suit she has brought against her husband, Allan W. Hale of Boston, on the grounds of cruel and abusive treatment.

Mrs. Hale, as she is known in private life, told Judge Fox that her husband knocked her down on their honeymoon trip, pinched her, found fault once when she had an extra 5-cent piece in her purse and otherwise abused her.

Charges Denied.

Allan W. Hale, the husband, came into court to confront the charges and entered a general denial to her charges. One of the questions asked by his counsel of Mrs. Hale in cross-examination was taken as an indication that "too much father-in-law" might be one of the lines of defence.

Mrs. Hale said to Judge Fox:

"I am twenty-one years old. My maiden name was Edna Bernice Gould. My father is W. M. Gould of No. 73 Foster street, Everett. I was married on October 11, 1905, to Allan W. Hale, a Boston theatrical man, at the Church of the Advent, twenty-five years old then.

"We went to Washington and Norfolk on our three-weeks' honeymoon trip. Two weeks after our wedding, while at the Hotel Regent in Washington, we had a quarrel. Mr. Hale got angry with me on the train. He knocked me down.

"Two weeks later, when we were at my father's home in Everett, he hit me as I lay in bed. He hit me several times just because I said I was going to the theatre when he did not wish me to.

"A few nights later he hit me again and I ran into mother's room. I was forced to leave him in February, 1908. I went to Eppingham Falls, N. H., to recover from illness caused by his treatment.

"I was forced to go to work. I secured an engagement in a Boston production. He followed me about. He phoned me. He took away my furs and hand-bag on the street one night. He threatened to kill me. He followed and annoyed me constantly.

Mrs. Hale's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Gould, corroborating some of her testimony, Mr. Gould said he had a fight with Hale when he was told that his daughter was being abused. He said he threw Hale out of the house.

Blames Bride's Father.

Mr. Hale was the only witness on his side. He said in substance:

"I never hit my wife in my life. I may have called her names, but only when she called me names. The trouble started when she found in my pocket a bill for a dress for Miss Victoria, an actress. I had taken the bill from Miss Victoria's husband to pay it for him. My wife got jealous. I love her. She cares for me. She told me so three weeks ago. If I was not for her father we would be living together."

Judge Fox continued the case indefinitely, saying: "Mr. Hale has strong affection for his wife. To grant a divorce would be to make a jest of the marriage ceremony. This thing should be allowed to rest a while. I hope the couple will try to live together again."

Judge Fox told Hale he could write to his wife and see her if he would be glad, but that he must not answer her.

Mr. Hale said in court that he would bring suit in $10,000 against his father-in-law.

Mrs. Hale was widely known in Everett, Malden and nearby cities, in her girlhood as a fancy dancer and amateur actress.

I had severe headaches and dizzy spells as often as two or three times a day. My stomach was out of order and my appetite was poor. I suffered from drowsiness all of the time and felt too weak to move around.

JUNE VASSAR, WHO IS SUING ALLAN W. HALE FOR DIVORCE

HORSEWHIPPING GIRL IS FINED $75

Miss Jessie B. McLellan, who horsewhipped Lawyer George A. Sweetser in the street last January, escaped the sentence of three months in the House of Correction imposed by a lower court, and was allowed to pay a fine of $75 instead by Judge Harris in the third session of the Superior Criminal Court today.

She pleaded guilty to assault on three counts. On January 31, in front of his office at No. 60 State street, she slashed Sweetser with a whip. He had been complained of for John F. Moore, defendant in an action for breach of promise brought by Miss McLellan. On March 4 she met Llewellyn E. Pulsifer of Natick on a train and, mistaking him for Sweetser, gave him a lashing.

She appealed from the prison sentence of the Municipal Court. Her lawyer made a powerful appeal for clemency today, saying the ends of justice would be adequately served by a fine. This was agreed to by Judge Harris, and Miss McLellan paid.

SULLIVAN! HE'S FOUND AT LAST

The mystery as to the identity of John Howard Sullivan, the man who sold to the city of Boston a rifle range for $25,000, which is now estimated to be worth $800, is nearing solution.

A man has been found who says that he knows Sullivan. He even says that he knows where he lives. He goes further and declares that if any inquisitive person goes to Woburn he or some other citizen of that city will willingly point out Mr. Sullivan.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Charles F. Day, before the Committee on Public Land, said that he met Sullivan. He said that he was introduced to him by John W. Johnson, a lawyer of Woburn.

Queried as to the identity of Sullivan today Mr. Johnson was somewhat evasive.

"I don't know as I want to say," said Mr. Johnson. "I don't know yet how much I am going to be mixed up in this thing. If I am going to be summoned in this case I don't want to make a lot of talk beforehand."

"Will you tell who Mr. Sullivan is, or where he can be found?" Mr. Johnson was asked.

"I guess if you come out to Woburn you can find out who Sullivan is without much difficulty," was the answer.

LYNN MAYOR BARS MORMON PREACHER

Mayor Hicks of Lynn has refused Elder John F. Price, of the Mormon Church, the right to hold street meetings where he might expound doctrines, the adherence to which has caused the neighbors and himself to name their little home town in Utah "Paradise."

"I may have a wrong impression of Mormonism, but that religion is held rather lightly in the minds of most of the people I know of, and I'm afraid that if the elder got under way, he might cause some trouble," said Mayor Hicks.

FLAGSTONE CASE ON AGAIN

The alleged "flagstone graft" case came before a special grand jury to-day with witnesses being heard separately instead of together.

Michael J. Mitchell, purchasing agent for the city under the Fitzgerald administration, and Thomas F. Maher of the firm of Maher Brothers, contractors, were indicted by the grand jury of July, 1908, on charges of larceny from the city or means of extortion in connection with flagstone contracts.

Both men pleaded not guilty and their counsel took exceptions to the indictment on the ground that witnesses before the grand jury had heard one another's testimony, instead of being examined separately. The case has been pending since then.

To-day a special session of the grand jury was begun and the witnesses before the grand jury which returned the original indictments were called in to give their testimony over again and to testify separately.

The action of counsel in the "flagstone" case was similar to the methods made use of by counsel in the McCullough and Cassidy cases, pending, in spite of the indictments on the ground of faulty presentation of testimony before the grand jury.

The Committee of One Hundred has sent to every registered voter in Boston a copy of the final report of the Finance Commission. The edition thus distributed consists of 110,000 copies. The committee, however, says that as some citizens who would like to read the report may not be on the list, it is ready to furnish them with copies, too. # ASKS RELEASE OF MRS. BOYLE

SHARON, Pa., April 16.—Attorney S. H. Miller for Mrs. James H. Boyle, alleged accomplice in the kidnaping of "Billy" Whitla, stated to-day that unless the prosecution produces its information and arranges for an immediate preliminary hearing he will go into court Saturday and apply for a writ of habeas corpus for the woman and demand her release.

The detectives of the Pinkins agency are of the opinion that Mrs. Boyle is Mildred Getty, who about a year ago led the hotelkeepers of New York a merry chase.

About a year ago the detectives looked into the record of the Getty woman, and their records regarding her tallied so nearly with those of Mrs. Boyle that an investigation was set on foot in New York.

Pictures of the woman were sent to the large hotels there for identification. It was also requested that tracings of Mildred Getty's signature on the registers be sent to Pittsburg.

Several replies have been received, and the tracings, compared with the writing of Mrs. Boyle appear to the minds of the detectives to clinch the matter of identity.

OLD BOSTON BALL PLAYER CONE DEAD

CHICAGO, April 16.—J. F. Cone, a once prominent baseball player, is dead here. He played first base and left field on the Forest City team of Rockford in 1868, 1869 and 1870. Harry Wright took A. G. Spalding, Ross Barnes and Cone to Boston, where all three contributed to the brilliant reputation that team enjoyed for years.

LOSES HAIR TO GAIN FREEDOM

GRAFTON, April 16.—Mrs. Charles E. Foskay, River street, got herself snarled around a wire clothesline and was held there by struggles in the pouring rain before she gave one big yank and got out. It all came from smoking a hen. Her shouts for help were smothered by the storm and went for naught.

A setting hen, a very stubborn one, got tired of sitting on the nest and left it to walk around in the rain and pick up a few worms. The hen ran around with Mrs. Foskay a close second.

Mrs. Foskay was making a dash for the hen when the wind blew her hair against the wire clothesline so that it twisted and snarled around the line.

The wind was blowing hard, and caused the hair to snarl more and more around the clothesline. Mrs. Foskay was frantic. She got angry, snarled and then mad. Then gave a yank and got free, leaving a large lock of hair hanging to the wire.

Mrs. Foskay said: "I'm through now getting your hair pulled hairs. When I get my hands in Fred Maynard's hair, I'll make him repent for killing my dog Rover that is, if he ever comes back to Grafton."

COLUMBIA'S BOAT CREW TRIES OUT FOR BIG RACE

The Columbia crew, which races Harvard, on the Charles to-morrow afternoon, took a trial spin over the course this morning, and Coach Rice was very well satisfied with the way the men handled the sweeps. He said:

I was agreeably surprised by the fine work of the crew this morning over the two-mile course. The two men seemed to fit in nicely, and the boat balanced perfectly. I do think though it will not have to make a change in the alignment for the race, as the men are going so well now.

We did not try to make fast time to-day, but I am satisfied that Harvard will know that she has been in a race after we get over the finish line.

Our stroke is slightly different from the Harvard method. We copy the famous English rowing stroke with a long body heave and not so much dependence on the leg drive.

The Columbia crew and coaches arrived in Boston about 5:30 last night and went immediately to the Hotel Victoria and retired early. The men were in the best of spirits and seemed confident of defeating Harvard Saturday. They will not be able to tell what the definite arrangement of the crew will be until to-morrow, but I feel fairly certain that the varsity boat will be made up as at present," said Coach Rice. "Columbia has a lighter crew than Harvard, as she had two years ago when we won by three-quarters of a length, and I think we shall win again this year.

I do not want to make any predictions," said Coach Wray of the Harvard varsity crew, "but I am sure that all of my veterans are fine in the best of condition from the start. I think we will stand a good show to win."

The betting odds are 2 to 5 last night on Harvard, but there is little Columbia money in sight in Boston as yet, only a few bets have been made at the Adams House.

Coach Bill O'Leary has reiterated his statement that the Harvard crew will win. "Although Harvard was defeated by a lighter crew when Columbia came here two years ago, I do not think that she can do it again this year," said he. "For the men on the Harvard eight have had the advantage of Wray's coaching from the beginning of their college rowing and I do not think that Columbia's lighter crew will turn the trick this year again."

The boating arrangement of the Harvard crew will not be changed before the race unless some accident happens. Two practice spins were held to-day from the varsity boathouse and a short paddle will be taken to-morrow morning.

The final practice will be held at 5:30 to-morrow afternoon, when the crew will go to the Cottage Farm Bridge to turn from the Charles into the Cambridge end of the Union Boat Club. If the conditions are not favorable at that time, the row will be held over until about 6 o'clock.

The officials will be: H. H. Norton of Annapolis, referee, and J. F. Perkins, '09, chairman of the regatta committee. A chairman of the regatta committee. A chairman of the regatta committee. A launch will be built for spectators at the foot of Berkeley street.

JOHNSON-KETCHEL FIGHT PLANS DISPLEASE FANS

NEW YORK, April 16.—There are two persons in New York to-day who feel more sick at heart than John McGraw. They are Billy Delaney, manager of Al Kaufman, and Joe Woodman, manager of Sam Langford.

Both managers were at the Evening Journal office to keep the appointment that Jack Johnson made with them Tuesday regarding a match with the champion, but Johnson failed to appear, having already signed to meet the middleweight champion, Stanley Ketchel, at Coffroth Club, in Colma, which, incidentally, leaves him open to much criticism; first, because he failed in his word to keep the engagement, and, secondly, because he has picked as his man winning the majority of fight enthusiasts all over the country figure has little chance against the big negro.

In fact, Promoter Coffroth, who made the match, was pestered by Willus Britt, who thought the fight too one-sided to talk until Ketchel disposed of Jack O'Brien here at the National Club, and on that fight alone is the Western promoter banking on giving a large house and warming the Frisco fires up to it.

The San Francisco scribes failed at sea when the little man has a chance to get the match was first mentioned, and it is very doubtful if they changed their opinions with possibly one exception.

There is nothing to figure Ketchel on, other than the fact that he is game and has a punch. Johnson, who, as he has never been extended, will have fifty pounds advantage in weight, two inches in height, and a world of cleverness and ring generalship in his favor. It is regarded by the great majority of fight going fans that Johnson will be a ready-made today who can beat the champion in a twenty-round fight. He really toyed with Burns, as the pictures show, the latter hardly landing three clean blows during the fourteen rounds fought. If a clever man like the Burns fails to land effectively, what chance has a crude, rugged fighter of the Ketchel type?

No slugger among the many that Johnson has fought ever had a chance to win. Flynn, McKey, Jeanette, Hart and others, all had their chance, but not one of the lot ever looked like a winner over Johnson, although Hart was given a decision at Frisco in one fight. And Johnson was tricked in that battle.

Billy Delaney is speaking of the heavyweight middle, said:

I kept fault with Johnson all through and see no just cause in him turning me down. I said my say and posted and covered his, but he let Britt and Coffroth talk him into a match with Ketchel, which, I think, will never come off.

There is a colored man in a crowd. He is backing Johnson and Billy Britt does come off I will still have my $5,000 posted to get the next chance at the champion.

I have read several criticisms on Kaufman's fight against Ross, many of which, I think, are unfair. All put in a good fight and did everything but knock out the Italian. I am not making any excuses for my fight and am pleased with the outcome.

There is nothing to figure Ketchel on, other than the fact that he is game and has a punch. Johnson, who, as he has never been extended, will have fifty pounds advantage in weight, two inches in height, and a world of cleverness and ring generalship in his favor. ### A THRILLING STORY...is The Journal of a Neglected Wife,' a remarkable novel of heart interest that will be received in instalments to-morrow. BOSTON AMERICAN

Fast Men Not Best Base Stealers

Strange as it may appear it is not always the fast man on his feet who makes the best base runner. Men like Ed Delahanty and "Big Bill" Lange, when in the heyday of their career, were as good base runners as there were in the league, if it was not, however, their fleetness of foot that made them such wonders on the paths.

Both players were big men, who had the art of sliding to a base down to a science, and this, coupled with the fact that they always managed to get a good lead and always managed their lead to terminate took advantage of their lead to terminate the men covering second made it well nigh impossible for them to be caught.

Players of the stamp of Delahanty and Lange were always on the lookout for a chance to pilfer a base. In order for them to be successful it was necessary for them to get a good lead.

This was done by closely watching every move of the pitcher and acquainting themselves with all those little peculiarities which by close observation are always manifested in the writer's work.

Every pitcher has some little peculiarity which he always discloses, letting the base runner know just about when he is going to let go of the ball. Once Lange or Delahanty understood this, they always took advantage of it.

Once under headway, these men always kept the man who was covering in view, and whichever way he went for the throw, they were sure to slide the opposite way. If the baseman stepped on the inside of the bag for the throw they slid on the outside of the base, and vice versa.

RELAY TRIALS AT TECH FIELD

Trials for the Technology relay team to run in the Penn. Games next Saturday will be held this afternoon at Tech Field, Brookline. Coach Ranny says he will time the candidates till 8 o'clock if necessary. There has been a big shake up in the progress of the team since K. D. Fernstrom 1910, announced that he had decided not to run again this year. Fernstrom is one of the best sprinters at the Institute and a veteran relay man. On the crack indoor relay team last winter he was chosen as the man to face the gun on account of his lightning-like start. The most promising candidate for Fernstrom's place is F. D. White 1911, the fastest half-miler at Tech. White has been working hard this spring and is in tip-top shape. Another man with a chance is J. Manchester Murray, a freshman who has been credited with 54 seconds without training. Ranny thinks he can use Murray as a end for future teams.

Class Numerals 1911, who captured the New England Intercollegiate furing dash last year and R. E. Reed 1912, captain of the Freshman relay team, are also trying for the race at the trip to Philadelphia next Friday. The new comers will make a final, however, with three veterans in Captain C. W. Gram 1909, W. C. Salsbury 1911 and A. L. Moore 1910. These men were all on the indoor team and have been training for the trials for several weeks and it is quite probable that they will all make the team.

WOLCOTTS IN FIELD.

The Roger Wolcott A. A., of Dorchester, is prepared for the season with one of the best amateur nines in the state and is ready to meet the leading amateur uniformed teams of New England. "Clean ball" will be the motto in every game as the manager believes in good sportsmanship and the boys will have to obey.

Frank W. Johnson, the former Latin School pitcher and manager of the Boylstons from 1897 to 1907 and also manager of the Fenno Five basket ball team, has been secured to manage the team and will have full charge of the boys.

The schedule is filling rapidly, but Manager Johnson would like to hear from the St. James, Notre Dames, Wanderers, Longwood A. A. and teams in this class. Do not confuse the Roger Wolcott A. A. with the Wolcotts of Dorchester. The latter is a 15-16 year old organization. The team's open dates are: May 1, 8, 22, 31, morning and afternoon; June 5, 17, morning and afternoon; July 3, afternoon; August 7, Sept. 4 and 6 morning and afternoon. This is the complete list, as all others are filled.

All of last year's nine are available, and in addition, Manager Johnson has Duffy, formerly pitcher on the Mattapan A. A., Richardson, former captain and third baseman of Boylston, Murphy, second baseman on last years Groveland and Foster, shortstop, formerly with the Wellington A. A. For games address, Frank W. Johnson, Mattapan, Mass.

Baseball News and Notes

Chicago semi-pro was played against Jake Weimer last year though that the former Cub southpaw had a hard time holding down a job with the Giants. Of course, Weimer may have recovered his old-time curve and speed, but this remains to be seen.

"Dusty" Rhoades was the only Clevelander holding out.

* * *

Clarke Griffith has secured another Egan for the Reds. This time it is Frank Egan and he is a member of the Fordham College nine. He will probably join the team in June.

* * *

Talk about your veterans—Manager-Owner-Catcher "Jeems" O'Rourke has all the other old timers beaten to active service honors. Jeems "the grand old man" has been playing professional ball since 1873, when he was a utility man for Boston, Giant and Senator before purchasing the Bridgeport team.

* * *

Baseball fans in the East have already started a crusade against the game with "fifty (take) Indian" hat, or, in other words, the penny basket collection which was sprung upon the unsuspecting public.

* * *

Freddy Parent is playing a lot of attention to batting this year. He's been hammering the ball into toward third base in almost every game he has played.

* * *

Guess Big Chief Myers isn't there. He emitted the usual number of big league roars during the Southern trip, and on his return to civilized ears he found his name being hailed against the Spalding for two more circuit clouts.

* * *

"Gentlemen Jim" Corbett, who has a smoking team that can go some on the baseball diamond arena, umpired a game between the St. Louis Athletic nine and the Missouri A. C. team last week.

* * *

Doyle Crisp, the St. Louis Brown who led the American League last season in batting, is on the way to Dallas to see McAleer the other day. The offering was his ship, body and soul, to Dallas for $2,000. McAleer said he would give him $3,000 cash. Doyle kicked the proposition into the trunk again and beat it back for the tall pine.

Addie Joss says that Cleveland fans missed Ed Walsh's pitching when the White Sox ace was not here. Joss says all the clubs in the league will meet Washington and then send them home to clean up the National Family for their near-tail-enders put the Nats out of commission. Joss thinks Washington can make a 1-10 bee for the rag.

Pronouncer Reese says the trouble with Terry Turner is a shoulder and not a bad arm. The reason that the batting-green one will be 75 B. ms less some one bumps into him with his touch force.

Billy Campbell, the Cincinnati twirler, and former star for Pittsburg, is under the care of physicians following the extraction of one of his tonsils.

George Wiltse of the Giants won 23 out of 37 games he pitched last season, and Manager Mgraw has him to pitch 40 games this year and to win 30 of them, which will be going very fast even if Wiltse is in the best of shape.

The Cubs will raise the National League record on free passes to the ball park this season. Chicago has already passed out the 100 mark in the form of 10,000 which he promises to the public for the opening championship game.

Johnny McGraw has had his annual crack on the nose by a batted baseball. He says there never been a season since he became a major league player that he has not had a similar experience.

Harry Pulliee, ex-scout and second baseman of the Brooklyn last year, will be with John Gluck's Rochester, N. Y., Eastern League team this year.

Cy Perkins will again cover third base Holbrook. He had quite a squabble over salary but accepted terms after settling.

John L. Sullivan's Column

As I predicted Jim Coffroth did not go Frisco nothing for he tied up the match when he got Johnson's and Ketchell's signatures to contracts to fight in Frisco in October. Poor Jim must have been up against it as he was down and out as a Fourth of July date, and is now seeking Battling Nelson and Packey McFarland to battle on the historic birthday.

No, wonder the announcement of the Ketchell-Johnson bout did not make any stir. It's six months off and loss of things can happen in that time. Then, again, a middleweight starting up with a fighter of Johnson's bulk with his science makes the match look punky.

No doubt the selection by Coffroth of Ketchell over Kaufman will cause an arrangement between the Frisco promoter and Billy Delaney, as Billy was counting on getting that very choice meeting with Johnson when the bidders got down to real business.

It seems that Coffroth cut out all sentiment when he chased across the country to get a respectable show for his club and did not care much how he made the best deal he could. Peculiarly he failed to take due notice that there was a colored middleweight named Langford worth considering, but a middleweight championship didn't seem to appeal to Jim much as a proposed heavyweight battle. Possibly, of the pair of colored champions, Johnson may be the biggest drawing card on the Coast, and a match with Langford might prove costly to Ketchell, who took the best course when he tied up for a go with the Tommy Burns slayer.

The ethics of the Coffroth promoters is to secure the biggest drawing card, irrespective of the risk entailed by fighters in the ring, and the winners stand the best chance of getting the call like the survival of the fittest in all kinds of athletics.

His hitting power is the only thing Ketchell has in his favor and it is a prominent marks him as a new Fitzsimmons, who was the only middleweight who could cope successfully with heavyweight champions. But Ketchell's record does not compare with the Cornishman in spite of his noted punch. Fitz knew more in a day than Ketchell will in several years when he went up against the class in the heavyweight brigade. The feat of scoring knockouts on such men as Sharkey, Corbett, Ruhlin and Dempsey.

It's the most natural thing in the world among the new scrappers to step up and fill the shoes of celebrated warriors of former days, and on the strength of that precedent Ketchell is given the credit of ascending the throne which Bob Fitz once occupied by going out of his class to make a stab for the crown of the big fellows. He may be equal to the job, but it's a big one.

I didn't hear of Johnson asking for any proviso being inserted in the articles of agreement when the match with Ketchell was made to tie up with Jeffries in case the white champion decides to fight. It strikes me that had Ketchell agreed to meet Sam Langford first and clear up his claim to the middleweight title before agreeing to meet Johnson he would have made a bigger hit with the public, as the bout would have been a card to attract widespread attention.

Answers to Letters.

John L. Sullivan:

Dear Sir—Am a boy fourteen years old and four feet eight inches tall, weigh eighty pounds. How should I train in order to become a boxer, as I am clever with the gloves?
E. S.

Take plenty of outdoor exercise and indulge in all kinds of athletic sports in moderation. Most athletes turn out to be pretty good boxers.

John L. Sullivan:

Dear Sir—Please tell me the holder of the baseball throwing record and the distance.

Boxing News in Brief Form

Oh, for a little brains to the management of boxing game in Memphis and New Orleans! Three two splendid cities are being scuttled, so as to speak, from boxing is concerned, by a few greedy promoters.

The name of Willus Britt? That stands little chance in an effort to get one of the New York boxing promoters the "coin" he showed from a wad of bills, during a visit to the Polo grounds on Monday, to make a purse of $25,000 for a battle between Stanley Ketchell and Jack "Boxer" Johnson. You may also smoked rumor concerning that telegram, he just gasped and staggered from the effects.

As an advertiser, C. D. Hillman, the Seattle real estate man, with a penchant for making gate receipts, is a wow. He's a close second to Sam Sanson and "Doc" Moynon.

Jeffrey Fitz of Brooklyn, one-time crack featherweight, is training for a fight in Sacramento, Cal. He expects to pull down a purse of $1,000 for a limit go at featherweight, and so forth, on a somewhat citizen, and was sent to the coolers for a stiff term. Fate is to come out shortly, and has been promised a comfy.

Dexter Reiley, the giant wrestler and collegian of Seattle, who thought to fill the boots of the late Jay Jeffries a short time ago, has gone back to his old love, the wrestling mat. He has been busted to pieces in all the big cities of the Middle West. Lately all the wrestlers were laid up with the "flue" had to cancel dates as had Joe Strange to say, none of them ever got to the scene of a success of it, more certain than Tommy Dempsey, who was a lightweight collar-and-elbow wrestler before he took up the game that will ever keep his name alive.

Just what clash Al. Kubiak possesses will be shown when he is matched with Jack Johnson, or Sam Langford at the National, in Philadelphia.

Amateur boxing will close horseboots with the show of the Lasky Hunting Camp, U. S. W. Y. at Cambridge, April 22.

The bout between Jack Goodman and Dave Deshler is scheduled for the Marathon Club, Brooklyn, next Tuesday.

Billy Delaney is going to take his boy fighter, Al Kaufman, across the water to meet Gunboat Smith, Jeannette and Meyer, to prove that he is entitled to fight Jack Johnson. Might be a good idea to mix with Sandy Ferguson, too.

Freddy Welsh may meet either Jack Goodman or Johnny Frazee at the Marathon Club, New York, soon.

NEW YORKERS TAKE SPRINTS

Everything is bustle and hustle today at the B. A. A. preparing for the big Marathon run Monday. This morning Tom Morrissey, winner of last year's run, Jimmy Lee, Sammy Mellor, Appleyard Moss, and others from Yonkers and the New York clubs, took a work out to Coolidge's Corner and back. It was about seven miles, and when they came down Beacon street they sprinted fast.

Billy Rosette, who climbed into prominence by winning a Marathon in New York a few weeks ago, has gone over the roads twice already and says he is satisfied with his condition and shape. He will loom up as a big man for first prize.

Most of the New Yorkers and out-of-town runners who will compete arrived in town today, and are stopping at the Copley Square, Nottingham, Oxford and other hotels near the B. A. A. That part of the city will look like an athletic meet and a Marathon run on Boylston row from to-day till Monday.

Five additional entries which were postmarked before midnight were received in the B. A. A. mail, increasing the total entry list to 171. Two, Luis Fins and James M. Wallace, were from the Pan-American. The others were J. McLaughlin of Somerville, Al Raines of New York and Ira B. White of Malden.

John H. Egan, who has been in five runs, will wear the colors of the Hancock S. and A. C. of Charlestown. Egan is very popular with the runners and expects to make good time. His friends say that he will be one of the prize winners.

There will be a special train to Ashland on the morning of Patriots' Day and the management of the Ashland House, where the headquarters will be, have made special arrangements to provide for the special guests of that day.

HAYES DEFEATS DINEEN AND NEARY

BANGOR, Me., April 16.—On a sixteen-lap track in Bangor Auditorium, Johnny Hayes of New York, the Olympic Marathon winner, over 15 miles against the relay team composed of Patrick Dineen of South Boston and John H. Neary of South Natick, Mass., seven and one-half miles each, winning by six laps in 1:27.14½.

Dineen ran the first half and Hayes had no difficulty in gaining at the rate of about three-quarters of a lap to the mile.

When Neary, a speedy man, came on in the second half of the relay, the race at once became exciting, but the South Natick man was unable to get more than a few yards in front at any stage of the game. Shish Hayes was two yards in the lead.

NOTED SPEEDWAY WINNER IS SOLD

BROCKTON, April 16.—Charles Irle has sold to George Nevins of Whitman the twelve-year-old ice pacing gelding, Dan Fiske, 2:14¼. Genora Fiske has shown halves at Combination Park in 1.03, and a year ago last fall won from Iris at the Taunton fair in races for driving clubs. Mr. Irle is now with his four events, including a cup at the Charles River Speedway, and events at the Brockton fair track and the Mons Avenue Speedway.

WOLGAST TO BOX MEMSIC 10 ROUNDS

LOS ANGELES, April 16.—Ad Wolgast and George Memsic will meet in a ten-round bout before the Pacific Athletic Club tonight. Although Wolgast has gone out of his class in meeting a much lighter man, the betting on the event is at even money. Both boys are trained to the hour, and there is a private feud between them a bout is expected.

DAVE DESHLER GETS 'BAGGED' BY FRIENDS

A fine traveling bag was presented by the Tammany Club of Cambridge to Dave Deshler, the crack lightweight, who is showing up this week at the old Howard. President Fogarty and about 100 members of the Tammany Club went to the theatre and gave the Cambridge athlete a grand reception.

By J. C. KERRISON.

That the officers of the Boston Motor Club do not propose to let the grass grow on their heels is shown by the manner in which they have undertaken the work of the organization. Since their election to office they have held several meetings, at the last of which they appointed several important committees. Messrs. A. B. Hendry, J. A. Dowling and F. P. Trefry were appointed as the permanent house committee, while another committee consisting of A. B. Hendry, R. R. Ross and A. F. Teele was appointed to consider permanent quarters and report at the meeting of the directors to be held next week. Vice-President E. A. Gilmore was elected chairman of the contest and touring committee, with authority to appoint the other two members of that important board. A publicity committee consisting of A. F. Teele, H. H. Love and A. D. Peck was likewise appointed.

The membership committee of the club held a meeting last evening, organized and considered some half dozen applications for membership.

Many motorists who use a mud shield on their cars find that it is a handy thing to have on a raw, windy day, for some of the wind even if does in interfere with the speed of the car to a certain extent. Some motorists are satisfied with it during a rainstorm, for they cannot see any distance ahead owing to the raindrops sticking all over the glass.

Many inventors have attempted schemes whereby this obstruction of a clear view of the road can be obviated, but a local motorist who prides himself on his ability at discovering remedies for automobile ills says a good way to do away with the difficulty is to wipe off the moisture and then rub the outside of the glass with a piece of cotton flannel. The glass of the glass will at first appear dull, but as soon as it is rubbed upon will become as clear as though it had been dried.

If glycerine cannot be obtained here, some will be found a good substitute. When this has been applied it is necessary to rub it over with the hand to make the drops of water run evenly all over.

George F. Lee, chairman of the contest committee of the Wilbraham Automobile Club, has received the sanction of the A. A. A. for the annual hill climbing contest up the Giant's Despair course on Wilbraham Mountain for May 31. Frank R. Rower, chairman of the A. A. A. contest committee, has notified Mr. Lee that it would be considered as the national hill climbing event, and permission to be there with a number of the A. A. A. officials. Frederick J. Wagner will be the starter. The referee and other officials will be appointed later, after consultation with the A. A. A.

"It is an ill wind that blows no one good," and it appears now as if the chief result of the recent racing agitation has been to make the American Automobile Association and the racing game widely known and better understood. The interest aroused through the activities of clubs is steady, but there is also a new line of applications for individual membership at the office of Secretary T. H. Kilfoil, No. 437 Fifth avenue. These individual applications never have been so large.

M'FARLAND AND NELSON AGREE

CHICAGO, April 16.—Packey McFarland and Battling Nelson last night agreed to battle after negotiations lasting a very short time at a local theatre, where McFarland is showing, and the terms was among the easiest.

Nelson was called upon by the crowd to make a speech, and he hopped upon the stage, where he gave his side of the controversy with McFarland, and said that only the refusal of Packey and his manager, Barry Gilmore, Jr., had prevented the proposed bout.

Gilmore said he would agree to waive his rights to the afternoon, and that Packey would sign to fight, winner to take all Gilmore insisted however, that Packey be allowed to weigh in at 133 pounds four hours before the fight. Nelson finally agreed, amid the cheers of the multitude.

DANZIG MAY GO TO LYNN TEAM

Billy Hamilton, the live manager of the Lynn New England baseball team, comes out with the announcement that he expects to get Danzig, the big first baseman of the Red Sox.

Negotiations have been going on for the release of the ex-New Bedford, California League player, with good prospect of accepting his services, as Jake Stahl appears able to cover the initial sack for the Boston Club.

Peter Cleaves, the star fielder of the Lynn Club, will probably go to the New Haven Club in the trade for Pitcher Herriet. The Connecticut League team wants another player besides Labelle and Manager Hamilling has consented to part with Clemens.

A Sacred Obligation

"It is as awful a responsibility to give life as to take it, and parents must give their babs every possible chance."

By Dorothy Dix

IT has been a long time since the newspapers have chronicled a sadder story than that of the sixteen-year-old boy who committed suicide the other day because his father and mother were divorced.

The lad's mother had dishonored her home and had been put without it. The wreck, wicked, pleasure-loving woman had gone her way to follow her own frivolous bent, and the boy and the father were left alone to manage as best they could in the deserted house.

A home is a desolate place with no woman in it to keep it bright and cheerful and clean and orderly. It is a terrible thing to come back at night to rooms in which there is no light burning, no face smiling a welcome, and in which is never heard the voice of a woman singing at her work, or rippling along in tender, foolish little talk.

The silence and the loneliness of the home out of which his mother had gone for ever got upon this boy's nerves, and made him morbid. He brooded over it, and the knowledge of what his mother had done and her shame struck at his heart like a knife, for he was old enough to understand such things, without being old enough to have the courage and philosophy to bear them.

He loved his mother. He missed her. He was bitterly hurt. He was cruelly mortified for the disgrace that she had brought upon him. And so, in a moment, when the dark waves of grief overflowed his soul, he took his life.

A Sacrifice to His Mother's Sin

The pathetic little story of this boy who was a sacrifice to his mother's sin, is one that should convey a terrible warning to every woman who is chafing under the fetters of an uncongenial marriage, or who is hiding in her heart the romance of a guilty love.

Nor will the lad have died in vain if it shall help married people to realize the awful responsibility that they assume when they have children.

Whether the father and mother love each other or hate each other; whether they have injured each other or helped each other; whether they are happy or miserable, does not make one iota of difference as regards their obligations to stay together and keep a home together for the good of their children, until the youngsters are big and strong enough to leave the nest.

The children are the only ones to be considered, and the only thing that can justify divorce when people have children is to know to a certainty that the influence of the erring father or mother will be more baneful upon the children than for them to be half orphaned.

There are many cases in which a man and woman, who make a very bad husband and wife, makes an exceedingly good, wise and tender father or mother.

Under such circumstances the aggrieved husband or wife, for the sake of the children, should bear with patience the misery of an unhappy marriage until the children are grown.

Unforgivable Sin of Parenthood

It is as awful a responsibility to give life as it is to take it, and parents would do a kinder thing to choke back the first cry of their newly-born babe than not to give it every possible chance in life.

To raise up a child in a house of discord, to embitter its young mind with hatred and contempt for the father that it should honor, or the mother that it should love, and to bring across the sunshine of its childhood the shameful shadow of the divorce court, is to do it an irreparable injury that no devotion, from the parent that is left to it, can ever atone.

A probation officer of Chicago not long ago made the assertion that 90 per cent of the wayward children and juvenile criminals in that city were the children of divorced parents, or came from homes in which there was continual strife between father and mother.

These statistics are the most terrible possible arraignment of divorce.

As for the woman who can forget the love of her babes in the love of some man, Anathema be her name! She sins the unforgivable sin, not so much in being faithless to her husband as in betraying the little clinging hands that clutch at her skirt.

Earning a Child's Curses

No doubt there are many women who are most wretched in their marriages.

No doubt there are many women whose husbands are cruel, brutal, neglectful, utterly unsympathetic.

No doubt it is hard for those women to walk their thorny path alone when they meet up with the man who should have been their mate, and who offers them all the love and tenderness and sweet appreciation for which they hunger and thirst.

But the woman with children has no right to think about herself. She must think that she can only raise up her children to be good and true and honorable if she has a clean record herself.

She must remember that the important thing is that she can look into the clear eyes of her innocent little children, and know that they can look back at her without shame.

The woman who cannot do this, the woman whose children sang their heads when they hear her name mentioned, deserves her fate when the child she has borne rises up and curses her.

Parenthood is the most solemn obligation in life. When a man and woman assume that, they give bond for the weal or woe of a human life, and it is up to them to make good at any cost to themselves.

The Flight of Time

Mr. Prothers Finds Out How to Make Slowness with Haste

By KENNETT HARRIS

THE tremendous exaggeration of time in the sleeping human brain, the impression of slowly passing years, ages, eternities, that it is possible for the dreamer to receive within a few actual, fleeting moments marked upon the clock dial, is a subject of unfailing interest to both psychologists and physiologists. There are numerous well-authenticated instances of this making slowness with haste, one of the latest of which is the experience of Mr. Trilwin Prothers.

Mr. Prothers had eaten heartily, but not immoderately, about half an hour before. He testifies that the food was wholesome and of a perfectly digestible character, and there is no reason to doubt it. Just before he fell asleep he happened to look at the clock. It was ten minutes past 7 p. m.

"What are you talking about? It's only fifteen minutes past seven."

Having noticed this, he almost instantly found himself in a residence street in Philadelphia, with which he had been very familiar some years before. It was a long street, an unusually long street, and he was at one end of it, while his destination was at the other end.

He was rather sorry for this circumstance, for the shoes that he was wearing were several sizes too small for him, and pained him excessively. They were patent leather shoes with pearl gray cloth tops and smoked pearl buttons—very smart looking indeed.

Mr. Prothers, who while not slovenly is not what might be called a particular dresser, observed without any surprise that he was otherwise attired in the very height of fashion, shining silk hat, exquisitely shaped frock coat, faultlessly tied cravat, and tightly fitting gloves harmonizing with the shoe tops. Also he carried a stick with a handle of warm ivory and silver.

In spite of the pain that his shoes caused him, Mr. Prothers felt a peculiar exhilaration of spirit, together with an anticipation of some agreeable event that might befall. He walked slowly, almost draggingly, but his head felt peculiarly buoyant. At times the top of the walking silk hat seemed to be touching the clouds and he would take it off to see if the luster had been thereby dimmed.

"She'll Be Down in a Minute"

Presently he came to a square house of red brick mellowed by time, which was enclosed by a spiky iron railing, and at the sight of it his heart began to beat a thump rapidly. It seemed to him that he had some special business there, and yet that it was something he participated at least until he had walked around the block. It was a long block, and he felt were hurrying when he set out, but he distinctly addressed himself to the task, and presently he found himself at the gate. Then the wrought iron gate answered his clang and smiled to see him, it seemed. Mr. Prothers also smiled back at the gate.

A neat maid servant answered his ring and smiled to see him, it seemed. Mr. Prothers also smiled back at the maid servant.

"Is Miss Meluzie in?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," answered the little maid. "Please to come in."

She showed him into a room that was obviously the library. "I'll tell Miss Melusie you're here, sir," she said, and then tripped off.

Mr. Prothers briefly directed himself to his right hand glove, smoothed his hair and twisted his cravat. Then he assumed a graceful pose in one of the two leather arm chairs and, breathing hard waited.

Presently he found that his position was beginning to cramp him and changed it a little. He shifted two or three times before the maid returned.

"Miss Melusie will be down in just a minute," she said.

"Thank you," said Prothers, gratefully.

In just one minute. Think of it! In just one minute she would be down! What graciousness! He was not put off with excuses, not denied. An instant—almost instant—response had been made. She was coming! That was about the way Mr Prothers felt.

He arose from his chair and stood expectant, his ear strained for the slightest sound. It was very quiet, though. There were no sounds even of housework from the kitchen. Only the big clock in the hall ticked in the deliberate and impressive way the clocks have of ticking, and the peddler in a distant alley musically chanted "peaches."

Mr. Prothers began to be conscious of his feet again. He returned to his chair, but still listened intently. "Tick," went the big clock, and then, after the regular pause, "tock." "Tick," interval, "tock," and presently a whirring and, "Ding-dong."

Was it possible that a quarter of an hour had elapsed? Mr. Prothers consulted his watch and found that it was in perfect record with the clock. He had crossed the threshold at 3 precisely.

Soon Mr. Prothers abandoned his listening attitude and fell into a sort of a dream of the varied charms and excellencies of the young person, Melusie. From this agreeable occupation he was aroused by the striking of the half hour. He got up and paced the room for a while and then sat on the window seat and read the opening and closing chapters of a novel in a perfectly mechanical way. At last, from upstairs, came the sound of a closing door.

And Then—He Woke Up

It was a false alarm, but before the pulsations of Mr. Prothers's heart had subsided to normal she really came.

"I'm ashamed of myself keeping you waiting so long," she said. "Haven't I been an awful time, Prothers?"

"It always seems a long time till you come, darling," said Prothers. "But just to see you, if only for an instant, is worth waiting an eternity for."

"Then why are you frowning so?" asked the girl.

"It's these confounded shoes," explained Prothers, walking up.

As a matter of fact, he was really wearing patent leather shoes, but they were a misfit to the grading that the counsel was suggesting to himself. He unbuttoned them and kicked them off, and then went to the window.

"Oh, Melusie! what-ho!" Melusie! What the dickens are you doing up there? Hasn't Mary given the shot of going?"

Prothers answered in the voice, with some emphasis. "I'll be down in a minute, Prothers," said he to himself, and he added, "Darned if I ever saw anybody like you, Prothers, for getting a move on, you!" Well, just about get the middle of the second act, I suppose."

"What nonsense!" exclaimed the lady upstairs. "Why, you've been on only about fifty minutes past seven."

Prothers looked at his watch. It was fifteen minutes past seven.

If you are a woman earning your own living, don't be afraid of your job.

If you simply sit down and wait for good fortune it will pass you by. Get up and go to meet it.

In a certain sense you may have to wait; that is, you may have to exercise much patience and forbearance before good fortune comes to you; but that is quite different from idle waiting.

An ambitious man never waits; he goes out and hustles; he looks for opportunity instead of letting it look for him.

In certain cases, however, the case is entirely different. They have given hostages to fortune. They have thrust existence upon little creatures that find life hard enough at best; and nothing on earth justifies the parents in doing anything that will lay one ounce more of burden on the little shoulders.

"Moments When You'd Rather Be Alone"

By NELL BRINKLEY

"Listen! Somebody's coming!" And why shouldn't they come? We wonder!

HOW often, oh Bettina Angelface, have you wondered why it is that people cannot remember that "There are moments when you'd rather be alone"? In those days after you have said the "yes" that stands for always, and before you and the Billiam that has laid all his clinking gold and his thumping heart at your feet, God, usually unbothered, is supposed to have the grace and good taste to turn his eyes away occasionally—why is it that in those days people don't realize, and you have to say so often: "Wait, Billy, listen! Somebody's coming!" And why shouldn't they come? We wonder! Oh, la, la, la!

The Manicure Lady

She Has One of Those Joy Rides, and Now Says "Never Again!"

"I WAS out for a joy ride last night," said the Head Barber. "I have never saw such speed."

"How did you break in?" asked the Manicure Lady.

"Oh, I managed it somehow," said the Head Barber. "I worked the relation biz. A forty-second cousin of mine met me at Forty-second street, and gave me and the Missus a whirl all over Long Island. We had a glorious night, kiddo. We killed three hens and two roosters, and crippled a St. Bernard dog. The air was balmy, and full of feathers and fur."

"I ain't going out in no more automobiles," declared the Manicure Lady. "Every time I start the chauffeur wants me to sit in the front seat, and when he is whispering sweet nothings in my ears he is steaming up the old car to the last notch, and running over all kinds of flora and fauna.

"The last time I was out a gambler, which was a friend of Wilfred asked he and I to go for a spin along the Westchester road. It seems this gambler cleaned up a swell bundle of coin on one of them queer races out in San Francisco, where, in the dying days of the dear old game, many a thing is being framed right under the noses of them stewards.

"He wasn't what you would call a mean guy, George, and the way he splashed when we got to one of them quaint little inns up the road would knock your eye out.

"He made his driver watch the speed laws until we was through our dinner, but during the dinner he had quite a lot of dialogues, and began to argue with Wilfred about Mister Allan Poe, whoever that is. He said to Wilfred: 'Kid, just think that the greatest poet that ever lived used to tramp down this Westchester road all the way to lower New York trying to sell his plays.' 'Poe never tried to sell plays,' says Wilfred, 'and he never lived on the Westchester road, either.'

"Well, George, that was the start of the row, and then Wilfred had it hot and Lady heavy for two hours, punctuating their arguments with the grape and leaving mussing there like a wallflower.

"The worst, George, was yet to came. When Wilfred and the host of the evening couldn't say another word, being that full of vineyard enteroppings, we all bundled into the auto and started back for the old homestead.

Nice, Ghastly Poetry, Too

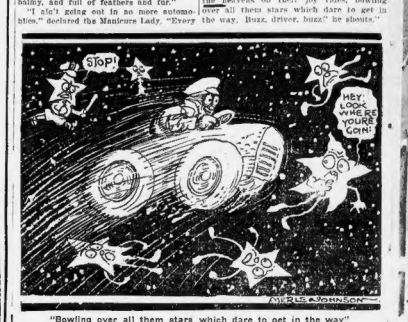
"'Oh, drive for your life!' shouts Wilfred's gambler friend. 'Show us the speed of the comets, which dash madly through the heavens on their joy rides, bowling over all them stars which dare to get in the way. Buzz, driver, buzz!' he shouts."



"Bowling over all them stars which dare to get in the way"

"You ought not to have got in the auto with one of them speed hogs," said the Head Barber.

"I had to get home some way," explained the Manicure Lady. "I hope you don't think for a minute that I'm keen for this murder and sudden death style of transportation.

"Well, George, that ride will long live in my memory as a hallucination, or a holocaust, or whatever you call the things bad dreams is made of. I never seen so much speed in my life. And all the time we was whizzing sixty miles an hour toward town, Wilfred and his awful friends was reciting poems like 'The Wreck on the Mouon Road,' and 'The Doom of the Limited Mail,' and heaven knows what else.

"We got home at last, after having caused no amount of havoc along the line, and when I got out of the car at our flat my knees was trembling under me till I could hardly stand. I didn't have nothing on Wilfred, at that, but not for the same reason. I was at least able to face father and mother, which was more than Wilfred could do. He sneaked up to his room, somehow.

"I don't see my way clear to own an auto," said the Head Barber.

"That's nothing," said the Manicure Lady. "From that scene there on I see my way clear."

Do "All Things Come to Those Who Wait"?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

THERE is a proverb that "all things come to those who wait." But if you take my advice, you'll work while you wait.

Personally I believe in the more practical, if less grammatical, saw, Dot "You can't get nothin' for nothin'."

And why should you expect to get the good things of life without working for them?

You may not have to pay out actual coin, but you must pay in work or in cheerfulness or in being obliging.

If you simply sit down and wait for good fortune it will pass you by. Get up and go to meet it.

In a certain sense you may have to wait; that is, you may have to exercise much patience and forbearance before good fortune comes to you; but that is quite different from idle waiting.

An ambitious man never waits; he goes out and hustles; he looks for opportunity instead of letting it look for him.

If you are a woman earning your own living, don't be afraid of your job.

Do not be satisfied with merely doing your duty. Do more than your duty. Your duty is what you are paid for; if you wish to succeed, you must do a little more than you are paid for.

From my desk I can see many office boys. Some of them are busy as bees, practicing the typewriter at every opportunity, agitating to their feet instantly at the call of "boy." Others do only what they cannot possibly avoid.

Confidence Half the Battle

It is very easy to see which type of boy is going to get on in the world.

Above all things, be confident. Don't be afraid to undertake things that seem at first impossible. You never can tell but what you may be striking just the thing that you will do particularly well. Don't be discouraged by failure; brace up and try again!

If you are a man, just clinch your fists and shut your teeth hard and say, "I will succeed!"

If you are a girl, go off and refresh yourself by a quiet little weep in a corner, and then come out fresh and ready to conquer the world.

I know my sex, and that's the reason I advise the quiet little weep. Weeps are such a comfort now and then!

There is one thing that I have told the girls many times, and that is that they cannot work and play at the same time. Unless you really mean to earn your salary, don't undertake the job.

Men have an idea that girls are more or less unsatisfactory in office work, and it is chiefly due to the conviction that girls are apt to be flirtatious and idle and to upset the male employes.

It is the duty of every earnest girl wage earner to overcome that impression, and the way to do it is by application to work, and by treating business as business, not as play.

To use a slang phrase, the man or girl who is "on the job" is the one who succeeds.

Keep your eyes open, and do not dream of the future. Be awake for to-day, and let the dreams of the future be the actual proofs of to-day's enterprise.

Don't rely on that old-time proverb about waiting. Be practical, and hustle, and you won't have to wait so long.

GIRLS CAN WARD OFF WRINKLES

WRINKLES are often the result of bad habits, such as repeated drawing of the brows, which forms small lines between the brows. Lifting the eyebrows usually results in long, transverse lines on the forehead, and adds at least five years to the real age. An evident, elevated smile imprints two heavy furrows from the nose to the corners of the mouth, making her face one night after seven months in the court's feet which disfigure many pretty faces.

Those who laugh much have little lines at the base of the cheeks near the mouth, but these are not objectionable. It is only those going to take note of those that are frowned or scowl which may be easily overcome. Anger is a vice which should be suppressed. Suffering races with age in many faces, but they disappear on the return of health.

Some women, whose complexions may have changed in one hour, spend three times with fresh water fifteen minutes before going to bed. This effaces wrinkles and moistens the skin. Water, placed in saucers, will evaporate into the air and may benefit the painful effects of a dry, burning fire. Wet cloths, frequently applied to the face, produce good results.

The fear of wrinkles induces many women to submit to manifold processes in the way of drying away these precursors of old age.

This is the method employed by a woman, coming for effacing the wrinkles which are produced in late hours and dissipation. She takes a sponge, lays the face to bed and remains until her fatigue has passed away, and every vestige of wrinkles and sorrow found upon it removed. She arises refreshed, beautiful and palatable, her face devoid of wrinkles. She declares that if all women will follow her advice in similar circumstances they will prolong their youth, retain their graces, acquire a desirable evenness of temper.

An acquaintance who was so fresh at the close of the season as at the beginning kept her beauty by remaining in bed all of one day each week. When Summer came she was the only one of the family who did not seem to require a change of air.

An English beauty retains her youthful charms, which defy the ravages of time, at the cost of infinite pains. Every tenth day she spends in bed, generally until she awakes naturally; then takes a warm bath, retires to bed, where a light breakfast is served; tries to sleep again, and if she does not succeed, remains quietly at home doing nothing, almost without thinking, in her darkened room. At 6 in the evening she arises, dines in her dressing room, and retains near the fire inactive until 10 o'clock, when she returns to her bed. This precaution she never omits, and it agrees with her marvelously. Occasionally her maid tends to her a light, unexciting romance.

However, if it is a possible thing, perfect repose of the face for a moment five or six times each day is advised. The eyes should be closed, the muscles relaxed and the face left perfectly placid. These little bits in the occupations and business do retard greatly the traces which time imprints upon our faces.

Who Can Answer This Tea and Sugar Puzzle!

A WORRIED consumer called upon the Speaker of the House last week to offer his views on the tariff bill.

"Please, Uncle Joe," don't be too hard on us," said the humble supplicant. "If you make food cost any more I shall have to quit eating.

"There's sugar and tea, for instance. Last year the two together cost me thirty dollars. I used three an many pounds of sugar as of tea, and the tea cost four times as much per pound as the sugar.

"If the new tariff makes me pay five cents more per pound for tea, and sugar is cut so as to cost one-quarter of a cent per pound less, then in one year, under the new prices, if I take the usual amount of sugar I shall have to take five pounds less of tea, in order not to spend more than the thirty dollars.

"Uncle Joe" said the consumer's story made an interesting problem, and passed it on to the Public Committee.

Can you tell just how many pounds of tea the consumer used last year, and how much per pound he paid for it?

CHAPTER XVII.
The Hand of God.

VANDUM, standing by the window, had in hand, unscratchedly watched the carriage containing Schultz down the street and stop, with a jingle of harness, in front of his door. Abstractedly he had seen Schultz step the steps and out toward the street, and had even started to get into the carriage, for once without recognizing his usual fatiguing word to the coachman on the box, so that the dignified James, vibrating much against his will all the traditions of his race, was at last obliged to speak without first being spoken to.

With a preliminary cough he touched his hat. "Beggin' your pardon, sir," he said, "but is there any chance?"

Vandum, coming to himself with a start, glanced quickly up. Then slowly he shook his head. "No chance this time, James," he answered; "we can only hope they may be more lucky. We've given Schultz the benefit, please, of the doubt."

Doctor Stratton, the foremost man of his day, slight, alert, composed, met them at the door. With a curt word of greeting he led the way within, and motioned Vandum to a seat. For a moment or two he sat silent, a troubled frown upon his face. Then he glanced quickly up.

"Vandum," he said abruptly, "this whole business of getting you to come out here comes pretty near being unprofessional. In the first place the governor's going to die, there's not the slightest doubt of that whatever; and any man who, if he could through him could live, he's the one. He's got more work and more responsibility than any man I've ever met, and that's saying a good deal, and I've seen some plucky men in my time. But—no human being with that second could pull through, and I doubt if he'd even come out for it. He rose, and Vandum, following suit, laid his hand for one moment in affection upon his friend's arm. "I mean it, Doctor," he said, "you're right to talk about how it happened. Shall I tell him go on?"

The physician shook his head. "He won't," he answered. "I even tried him on it myself, but he's evidently made up his mind. 'I'm not talking,' he said. 'It was the same game with both of us. Let him get away with it for all of me,' and not another word would he say. So, I suppose, better not waste time."

As he spoke Vandum entered the darkened room and took his way over to the narrow bed by the window. In front of all the doctor said, he could see a regular start. The head lifted, looked up at him was fearfully changed—bloated, unnatural, pale, drawn with pain—only the eyes, untamed to meet his look, gleamed still with all the strength able fire of old. Gordon's mouth half parted in the mere semblance of a smile, and more by his glance than by any real answer to the doctor's question, he signified his intake the coarse that stood beside his bed.

"I know all about it, Herman," he said. "Devil of a time to get you to send for Doctor Stratton a pretty good one, though. Not a damn pompous old fool like most of 'em. I suppose I'm not going to pull through, eh?"

Vandum shook his head. "I'm afraid not, Gordon

GIRLS DRAW PAY WHILE AT SCHOOL

A new rise in salesmanship was organized today at the Women's Educational and Industrial Union, following the graduation of twenty-seven young women pupils last night. A large number of girls signified for admission.

The Union School of Salesmanship works in harmony with the heads of the several department stores of Boston. Young women are admitted in this class, given full pay as employes on one of two different days and allowed to attend the lectures with the class during the morning. At the end of three months' course they are guaranteed good positions in some of the stores.

This organization of women has entered not only upon a practical scheme, but it is doing a magnificent work," said Superintendent W. A. Hawkins of the Jordan Marsh Company today.

Many a girl who has not had the advantage of education is given the opportunity to earn a good salary from which she would otherwise be barred. The girls in the stores are taking great interest in the work.

Admission to the class is free. The applicant having received first hand information in which she is to work and by Mrs. Herbert W. Gleason, director of the school. She must be eighteen years of age. At present the class is also meeting for one week for ten weeks.

At the graduation exercises were present as guests:

Mrs. Mary Morton Kehew, president of the Women's Educational and Industrial Union; Mrs. Arthur Astor Carey, Mrs. Hawkins and Mr. Hawkins, son of W. A. Hooper of the firm of Jordan Marsh Company; Miss T. Chase and Mr. Cluney of J. A. Houston Company; Ralph Albert Gain and Mr. Tenney of Gilchrist Company; Arthur W. Phinney of Gilchrist Company; R. D. # 15,000 STRIKE; LABOR WAR ON GREAT LAKES

CHICAGO, April 16.—The strike of the sailors on the Great Lakes, or rather their refusal to work, is now in effect. Fully 15,000 men, from engineers to deck hands, are affected by the decision of the union organizations not to operate boats belonging to members of the Lake Carriers' Association until its avowed purpose to enforce an open shop on boats is abandoned.

Some boats which have signed up men without the open shop clause and others with non-union crews will try to get out of port to-morrow. Several boats of the Mutual and Union lines will try to break through the line.

Thomas A. Hanson, treasurer of the Lake Seamen's Union, declared that the situation virtually amounts to a lockout. He said 15,000 seamen were only awaiting the outcome of negotiations before declaring the boats' quota.

President William Livingstone of the organization has announced that the employes will not be ordered out "if the companies only will consider the union."

"We are only waiting for an overt act before we strike back," said the Treasurer Hanson. "I believe a fight to a finish is

WALL ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

WALL STREET, New York, April 16.—Wheat and cotton have gone to new high records in Wall Street and checked the upward swing of stocks for the moment. Although the commodity market is backed by a strong statistical position, the Street is afraid that some of the shorts in grain and cotton may be compelled to liquor stocks overboard. One report is that a leading operator in the stock market had already begun to do this. This report is due chiefly to the character of stocks that seem to be weak. Twenty of the leaders make up 60% of the entire transactions in stocks, and it is in this group that the bulk of weakness is developing. The pause in the stock market is due chiefly to a general desire to find out exactly the truth of the situation.

$ $ $

With the elimination of stop loss orders and of a large number of weak bull accounts the market, on the rushes of short covering, will be much better able to stand on its own bottom than at any previous time in its history. It seems to be a matter of evolution that it is going to be a market of evolutionary funds to invest and speculate upon. Under such conditions it is impossible to get any returning feeling in the stock market. They are venturing into that because they believe business must revive very soon.

$ $ $

One straw indicating that a revival is at hand was picked up in the stock exchanges, where it was said that the corner had been turned definitely in that trade. Although the Trust is doing only about 60 per cent. of normal business, there is a gradual growth from day to day. The business is being taken at a lower price and profits are smaller, but it will be the policy of the Trust in the future to fit prices to conditions, so that prices will never again must be paid with a few months, and the losses incurred on business taken now will be more than made up. Insiders of the Steel Trust are buying their own stock with perfect freedom. The tariff is being revised exactly as they were promised would be done.

$ $ $

James J. Hill says:

The people want the tariff revised downward. That means a reduction in prices. The people have not forgotten the promises made in the last campaign, and it is incumbent on them to see that they live to make good. Party lines in the United States have never been so nearly effaced as at present. It, therefore, behooves the Republican majority in Congress to make its deeds square with the words uttered by the representatives of the party at the stump last Fall."

Mr. Hill refused to make any comment on the Payne bill or the measure reported by the Senate Committee on Finance.

Gould shares continued to gain favor in the Street, and the report of Missouri Pacific's earnings made this week confirms the good opinion that is growing. The inevitable conclusion is that traffic had been deliberately withheld from Missouri Pacific and is now being permitted to drift back to it from other systems. There is little doubt that George J. Gould is retiring permanently from the railroad world. He had such plans about eight years ago, but abandoned them because he could not finance the holding company he then planned. His connection is now being managed for him by strong interests.

$ $ $

The only question is as to what his system will dominate the roads now comprising the Gould system. Authorities believe that the system will be built together. The most likely solution is that the Rock Island, Union Pacific and the Hill systems will own it in partnership. Such an arrangement would reconcile the many rivalries of interests in it having been acquired. About five years ago the Rock Island made a determined effort to get control of Missouri Pacific, but was foiled by Russell Sage. At that time the Rock Island people looked to E. H. Harriman as a pondil. They have made peace with Harriman since, and the combining of interests affected in the last year undoubtedly provides for making Gould lines the common property of all the other great systems of the country.

$ $ $

The dividend meeting of Chesapeake & Ohio directors was postponed for reasons that did not seem sufficient to Wall Street. The delay in declaring the 4% dividend is said to be due to a new offer received for the property. It is to be underwritten plans for the Chesapeake & Ohio and protect they are authoritative, be cause even Mr. Hawley does not know where the road is going. It is for sale to the highest bidder. It is easy to figure a dozen places where it might be sold, and yesterday Wall Street disposed of it to the Illinois Central on a per cent. basis of 4 per cent. dividend basis. This deal does not account for the strength of Iowa Central, which is becoming impressive.

$ $ $

Southern Railway stock was noticed again, and with the official cause is report that the company had sold $5,000,000 issue of bonds to the Morgan syndicate at 85. Proceeds of the sale will be used to take up $1,000,000 of the $15,000,000 convertible 6 per cent. bonds maturing May 1, 1911. Morgan & Co. are offering to buy these notes at 100½.

Bankers East and West have been likewise buyers of the rights on the Northern Pacific convertible 4s. They are considered an excellent investment. The bonds are optional, as a whole, but not in part, on March 1, 1914, or any other interest date thereafter at 105. They are convertible at the option of the holder at any time prior to June 1, 1910, into common stock of the company at $130 per share.

WALL STREET IS IRREGULAR

By THOMAS C. SHOTWELL.

NEW YORK, April 16.—Stocks were irregular in the early trading in Wall Street to-day. Standard railroad shares were heavy and scored losses of about half a point, with Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and Reading the chief sufferers. Amalgamated Copper was under heavy pressure and declined nearly a point, while Smelters was fractionally lower.

Hawley stocks and a few other specialties were fairly active and higher. Of the former group Chesapeake & Ohio was the leader, with an advance of half a point to 77¼. In the speculation in specialties American Ice, National Lead and Ontario & Western were at the front with gains of about a point each. Pullman was also strong, rising four points to 186. This stock has advanced over ten points in the last week.

Profit taking made its appearance in Southern Railway issues, resulting in a decline of about a point in the common and three-quarters of a point in the preferred.

HAWES' SCHOOLBOYS RECALL OLD DAYS

Although it was fifty years ago that the Old Hawes School opened out of existence, many of the Old Hawes "schoolboys" were alive and flourishing at their twenty-fifth annual reunion and dinner at Young's Hotel. One remainder of ninety-three years, John F. Souther, spoke to his younger classmates of the days at this old grammar school. Another schoolboy, Robert Bragg, came from his home in San Francisco to change hands and sing the old songs with his schoolmates. Charles W. Capen, aged eighty-seven, and George W. Fowle, eighty-eight, joined in the reminiscences of the old days. Other speakers were Richard K. Monks, William Gallagher and George D. Burrage.

WHO ARE THE CRIMINALS?

District Attorney Hill MUST INVESTIGATE THE CHARGES Made by Ex-Mayor Matthews

Ex-Mayor Matthews has justified the hope expressed in the American, that he would COME FORWARD AND BACK UP the statements about corruption and graft in Boston that he put forward in his sensational speech in this city a few nights ago.

This newspaper congratulates Matthews upon finding his voice and pen, and upon his ability to use the English language. He could have saved himself a great deal of unnecessary trouble if he had made the explanation a few days earlier.

For him to have REMAINED SILENT would have led to the belief that he was trying to shield somebody. The letter to the newspapers is FRANK, OPEN AND MANLY, and puts the matter squarely up to District Attorney Hill for a thorough investigation.

Mr. Matthews is a lawyer—a good lawyer, it is said—and he knows perfectly well that the general charges he makes would have no standing either before a Grand Jury or before a court. But they are SUFFICIENTLY SPECIFIC for the District Attorney to begin an IMMEDIATE INVESTIGATION.

All friends of BETTER GOVERNMENT will welcome the frankness with which Matthews states his case, and they will stand squarely behind District Attorney Hill in the most rigid investigation that he should begin at once.

This newspaper has no concern with the "politics" involved, but we do feel concerned about the good name of Boston. WE WANT TO KNOW who the grafters and corruptionists are.

If it be true, as Matthews says, "that there are repeated instances of gross misconduct on the part of the City Council and the Mayor, resulting at times in the systematic and continuous spoliation of the city," then there is a VERY GRAVE AND SERIOUS CONDITION which the District Attorney must not shrink from mesting.

And if the City Council be wise its members will procede to an investigation on their own account.

NO HONEST MAN EVER FEARS THE DAYLIGHT.

If it be true, as Matthews says, that the report of the Finance Commission shows "numerous instances of municipal frauds of the grosser and more sensational kind" the public has a right to know all about them. Who are the corruptionists?

IF THERE BE EVIDENCE of "collusive arrangements between the executive department, the members of the City Council and influential politicians" the matter should be brought promptly to light.

And, further, if the reports of the Finance Commission show "scandalous purchases of supplies and land, and all the ordinary manifestations of municipal graft" the probe must be put in without let or hindrance by the District Attorney, that the guilty may be exposed.

WHICH MAYOR does Matthews refer to? Does he mean Hibbard or some one else?

How can Mayor Hibbard avoid DEMANDING A COMPLETE INVESTIGATION of the charge "that city money is being spent for the personal benefit of the Mayor and the members of the City Council"?

The whole matter is now out of Matthews's hands. It is up to the District Attorney, to Mayor Hibbard and to the City Council. Failure to make a thorough investigation will only lead to the conclusion that the situation is worse even than Matthews pictures it.

SILENCE WILL BE PROOF OF GUILT. The public wants the facts.

Matthews has made his charges in an open, vigorous and unmistakable way. The burden of proof is no longer on him.

What are District Attorney Hill, Mayor Hibbard and the City Council going to do about it?

The Crime of Making Bread Dear

Such a social outrage as is now being committed in the Chicago wheat pit would be impossible in either Germany or France.

In both those countries severe prison penalties are prescribed for the punishment of those who deal in grain "futures" or who attempt to establish a "corner" in foodstuffs.

According to the common law of England, nobody had a right to buy up provisions for the purpose of narrowing the market and enhancing the price.

Doubtless it would still be regarded as a crime in all English-speaking lands to "corner" foodstuffs, if it were not for a certain remarkable notion that took possession of the field of economics in the middle of the last century.

Making money by cornering the wheat market ceased to be regarded as a crime in England simply because Mill and Bright and Cobden had persuaded everybody that, under the common law of nature, nobody COULD corner the wheat market.

There is no doubt now that it IS possible to corner the wheat market—possible for an irresponsible speculator to make money by raising the price of bread.

The doubt has vanished, because we have seen the thing done.

And the spectacle is grotesque and monstrous.

Mr. Patten quibbles to the newspapers and says that he has no "corner"; that he doesn't "control" the wheat market—since he has in his hands only a fifth or a sixth of the available American supply.

He draws a long face and talks with an unpleasant unction about preaching "the gospel of higher wheat."

It is perfectly evident that one can raise the price of hoecakes without owning quite all the corn in Egypt.

The gist of the wheat speculator's offense against the sound canons of business is that his business is simply a nuisance, whether the scale of his operations be large or small.

You are a useful merchant if the net result of your merchandizing is to make it easier for people to get the things you deal in. You are a dishonest merchant, and worse than useless, if your work makes it harder for people to live.

That this country should content itself with a lower standard of commercial morality than France and Germany, or that it should be less diligent in the protection of the people's bread, is not to be thought of.

The day of judgment and retribution for those who make game of public hunger is at hand.

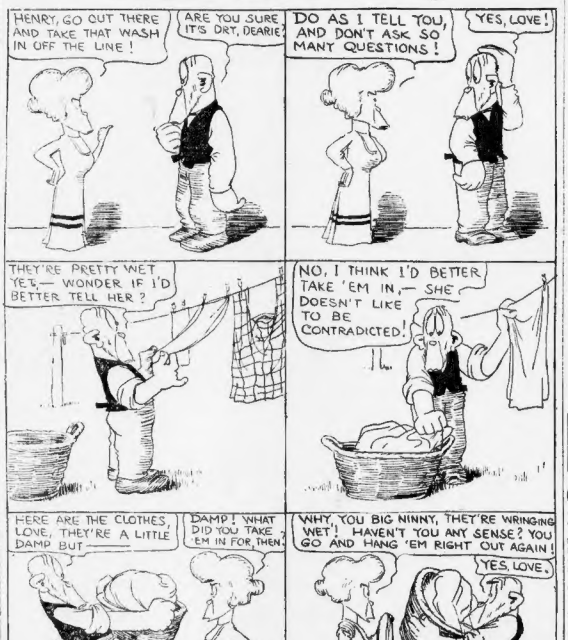
He Brings in the Wash, but He Takes It Out Again



HENRY, GO OUT THERE AND TAKE THAT WASH IN OFF THE LINE!
ARE YOU SURE IT'S DRY, DEARIE?
DO AS I TELL YOU, AND DON'T ASK SO MANY QUESTIONS!
YES, LOVE!
THEY'RE PRETTY WET YET— WONDER IF I'D BETTER TELL HER?
NO, I THINK I'D BETTER TAKE 'EM IN,— SHE DOESN'T LIKE TO BE CONTRADICTED!
HERE ARE THE CLOTHES, LOVE, THEY'RE A LITTLE DAMP BUT—

WHY, YOU BIG NINNY, THEY'RE WRINGING WET! HAVEN'T YOU ANY SENSE? YOU GO AND HANG 'EM RIGHT OUT AGAIN!
YES, LOVE.

A Lesson for Husbands

"A Story That Every Man in America Should Read"

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

"THE Journal of a Neglected Wife," which will be published serially in this paper, beginning to-morrow, should be read by every man in the United States.

It presents the woman's side of a story which is growing every day a more common one in our "civilized" age.

It is the story of a wife who becomes conscious that her husband has an attachment outside of his home; that somewhere "she" dwells, holding the husband's heart and thoughts save when he is at home, and causing him to make increasing absences from that home—absences explained as "detained by business."

While this conviction has been borne in upon the wife's consciousness, and before the conviction has brought its train of proofs, the poor, tortured woman writes in her diary:

IF I could feel that she was some ordinary woman of the chorus-girl type, however keen the humiliation might be, I would still feel that it was an infatuation that would not last.

But I know he could never care for a woman of that kind. He could never overcome his innate loathing of all that is coarse and vulgar.

Whoever she is, she must be, outwardly at least, a refined woman, a gentlewoman.

I spend anguished hours in wondering what she is like, in trying to picture her. I have no clew except that one unsigned note I found last Winter, and now this elusive perfume——

And yet just such another wife lived to discover one day that her husband was, despite her belief in his refinement and his innate loathing of the vulgar, bound body and soul in the toils of one of the most degraded and vulgar women of the half-world.

The woman who writes this "Journal of a Neglected Wife" has written it in her heart's blood. She has been married fifteen years, she has grown faded, and this anguish through which she is passing has blanched her cheek and carved lines about her mouth. Every glance in the mirror is a stab in her heart. And then she writes thus:

TO-DAY a young and beautiful woman got on a street car and took a seat beside me.

I caught my breath at her almost dazzling beauty.

Her skin was marvellously white and clear, with a faint rose pink in her cheeks. There was not a line or blemish in her face, and it was the beauty of youth and freshness—there was no paint nor powder there.

She was dressed with daring, striking simplicity—a white broadcloth suit, and a plain white felt sailor.

I watched her with a sickening sense of envy—almost of hatred. I seemed to feel all the lines in my poor, wan, faded face. I could not bear to sit beside her.

Oh, I feel so old—so pitiably old!

At the next corner I got off and walked home, my heart filled with a dumb, hopeless misery.

Perhaps one of the most pathetic notes in the whole scale of this sorrowful story is touched in the following extract:

I HAVE been looking at a picture of Horace, taken when he was about ten years old. What a precious little boy he was, standing there by a chair in that quaint velvet suit, his hair combed back very straight and smooth from his earnest little face!

How he laughed over this picture when I found it among his things soon after our marriage!

And I have another, taken when he was in college, a tall, slim youth, with the same earnest face and grave, dark eyes.

There is a feeling almost of exultation that these pictures are mine—wholly mine. He can give her none like them, for there are no others.

And I feel, too, that all the memories of his youth belong more to me than they ever can to her. I do not think he could ever tell her of his boyish dreams and aspirations, as he once told them to me.

There are hundreds of men who are in the very first stages of a fascinating experience—an experience which leads their thoughts and steps away from the wife who has begun to pass from the bloom of the bride into the maturity of the matron.

Scores of these men are battling with the new temptation which has come into their lives, and are trying to resist it; others are encouraging it, and arguing with their own better natures in an effort to justify their inclination to infidelity.

"The Journal of a Neglected Wife" would make excellent reading for such men, as they lock their office doors and start on the uptown trip, undecided whether they will go home, or telephone the wife that they are "unavoidably detained by business."

Read this remarkably realistic story. It is full of modern life incidents; it is full of pitiful, painful truths. Read it!

Clara Morris

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

This poem was written by Mrs. Wilcox to be read at a benefit for Miss Morris, this afternoon, at the New York Theatre, New York City.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox

THE Radiant Rulers of mystical Regions,
Where souls of artists are fitted for birth,
Gathered together their lovely legions
And fashioned a woman to shine on earth.

They bathed her in splendor;
They made her tender;
They gave her a nature both sweet and wild;
They gave her emotions
Like storm-stirred oceans,
And they gave her the heart of a little child.

These Radiant Rulers (who are not human Nor yet divine like the gods above)
Poured all their gifts in the soul of a woman,
That fragile vessel, meant only for love.

Still more they taught her;
Still more they brought her;
Till they gave her the world for a harp one day.
And they bade her string it;
They bade her ring it.
While the stars all wondered to hear her play.

She touched the strings in a master fashion;
She uttered the cry of a world's despair;
Its long-hid secret, its pent-up passion
She flung to the winds in a vibrant air.
For oh! the heart of her,
That was the art of her;
Great with the feeling that makes men kin:
Art unapproachable,
Art all unconfinable:
Fragrance, and flame, from the spirit within.

The earth turns ever an ear unbending
To the sorrows of art as it cries for "more"
And she played on the harp till her hands were bleeding
And her brow was bruised with the laurels she wore.
She knew the trend of it;
She knew the end of it.
Men heard the music, and men felt the thrill.
Round to the altar of art, could she falter?
And then came a silence—the music was still!

And yet in the echoes we seem to hear it:
In waves unbroken it circles the earth.
And we catch in the light of her dauntless spirit
A gleam from the Centre that gave her birth.
Still is the fame of her.
Felt in the name of her;
But low lies the harp that once thrilled to her strain.
No hand has taken it;
No hand can waken it;
For the soul of her art was her secret of pain.

Clara Morris.

Our Wine Taboo

By Paul Thieman

ONE of the greatest practical booms for the cause of temperance would be if the drinking men were weaned from whiskey by the cheapness and excellence of wine.

The United States government's policy is to levy a tax on alcoholic beverages so heavy as to be utterly unreasonable except on moral grounds. It is commonly defended as a moral necessity.

As is well known, the wine-drinking countries are the most temperate in the world.

It would seem, therefore, that if the taxing power is properly used to make two cents' worth of bad whiskey cost the drinker ten cents or fifteen cents it would be still better to take the tax off pure, benignant, merry wine to encourage its use in place of fiery, murderous spirits.

For instance, it is proposed to raise the impost on wine to $0.60 a dozen quarts on the ground that it will be taxing spenders, fools and the rich.

Why will it tax them?

Because the average American drinker regards beer as a necessity and whiskey as a necessary evil, and classes wine as a luxury and therefore doesn't regularly use it.

The phrase "wine, women and song" expresses a false idea based on the fact that men grown reckless on whiskey will buy wine at ridiculous prices just to be "sports."

And the poor are convinced that beer is more filling and whiskey most effective for their money.

Consequently, there is little call for vinous beverages except in Italian and French cafes and high-class American restaurants. In the average barroom common wine, when called for, is doled out as medicine.

Most Americans drink wine either by the mouthful for stomache ache or in rivers to "blow" themselves.

Those who would prefer the grape if once they tried it never have a chance to get the taste of the most ancient and honorable of stimulants.

And surely it is to the interest of the American wine producers to create, first of all a demand for good wine.

Once the wine-tun becomes a fixture of cafes, restaurants and barrooms, and the taxing power is used simply to pass on bad wine, the American wine maker will have a market worth fighting for.

But, alas! About the only way the great beneficence could be assured would be if the W. C. T. U. asked Congress to do it! And that—well——
